

Reason For Barbara's Fight

Center of the storm between Countess Kurt von Haugwitz-Reventlow, the former Barbara Hutton, and her husband, is their young son, Lance, shown above. In her rift with the count, the Woolworth heiress is now seeking restoration to American citizenship in an attempt to retain custody of her child. She has already obtained a warrant for the count's arrest as part of her custody fight. It was at first reported that a guard established about her home resulted from a threatened kidnaping.

Woolworth Heiress In Marital Rift, Seeks to Regain Once-Renounced Citizenship; Warrant Out for Count's Arrest.

(By International News Service)
LONDON—Looked in a bitter struggle with her Danish husband over the upbringing of their two-year-old son, Lance, the Countess Kurt von Haugwitz-Reventlow turned for aid today to the country of her birth.

The former Barbara Hutton, heiress to the Woolworth five and ten cent store millions, instituted legal inquiries regarding restoration of her American citizenship which she renounced several months ago.

Bitterly regretful that she took this step, the countess hopes that if she regains her American nationality she may be able to defeat all attempts of her husband to gain custody of her child. Already, she has obtained a warrant for his arrest as part of her strenuous efforts to keep Lance for her own.

STUDIES LIST OF ELIGIBLES

Mayor Expected to Name New Policeman to Fill Copper Vacancy in Few Days.

Mayor Claude M. Hunter indicated today he will appoint a new member to the Mansfield police department within the next few days to fill the vacancy caused by the resignation of Harry Copper Tuesday.

Hunter today was studying the list of three certifications forwarded to him by the civil service commission. He said he wanted to interview the three men whose names he had received and would study their grades and qualifications before deciding on the appointment.

The appointment will be for a 90-day probationary period at a salary of $110 per month.

The state civil service law under which the Mansfield commission operates, gives the appointing authority, which is the mayor, 15 days in which to make his selection from the eligibles sent him by the commission.

BENSON'S FOE TO ASK RECOUNT

Minnesota Governor's Victory to Face New Contest.

MINNEAPOLIS—(AP)—A contest over the apparent victory of Gov. Elmer Benson's bid for re-nomination on the state's Farmer-Labor ticket appeared probable today. His opponent, Hjalmar Peterson, announced he would seek a recount of the votes in St. Louis county, including Duluth.

After the lead shifted several times in early returns from Monday's primary Gov. Benson pulled ahead by virtue of an almost two-to-one majority from Duluth and environs. With only 300 of the state's precincts still to be heard from today Benson led by more than 20,000 votes.

3-Judge Court Upholds Ohio Liquor Law Status.

COLUMBUS—(AP)—Constitutionality of the Ohio liquor control act was upheld today by a three-judge court which dismissed a complaint filed by the Wadling, Kinnam and Marvin company, Toledo, former dispensers of medicinal liquors.

The Toledo company had sought permission from the state liquor board to continue to distribute liquor, but was refused.

CITY FROM NEW STATE RELIEF PLAN

Measure Allowing Issuance of Bonds Against Back Taxes to Be 'Last Resort.'

PIN HOPES ON 2-MILL LEVY

Bill Would Allow Mansfield to Borrow $68,000 If Voters Gave It Approval.

Mansfield and Richland county turned thumbs down today on another emergency relief measure passed by the state legislature yesterday which allows cities to borrow against delinquent taxes to get relief funds.

The legislation which went to Gov. Martin L. Davey today for his signature, authorizes the cities to issue bonds against back taxes. City and county officials said they would turn to this method of relief financing only as a last resort.

The state tax commission estimated it would raise $32,861,672 in Ohio and $68,964 in Mansfield.

Auditor Says Plan 'Foolish'

Mansfield officials are staking their hopes on a proposed two-mill tax levy to provide funds for relief, and Auditor Paul L. Kelley, described the bill as "a foolish way to raise money—one that mortgages the city's future." In the event it becomes a law, Kelley said the city would use it only after all other plans for raising funds have failed.

"In my opinion, it's a bad thing," County Auditor Norman L. Wolfe said. "Once a practice of that sort is started, the sub-division will have to continue it and go deeper into debt," he added.

Needs 65 Per Cent Vote.

Before the bonds could be issued against the delinquent real estate taxes due on property in the city, voters would be asked to approve the bond issue by a 65 per cent majority.

The bill would enable Shelby to borrow up to $9,909 against back taxes on the city's real estate. In Cleveland, where the relief problem has grown to serious proportions, bonds could be issued up to $5,733,451, and Cincinnati, Columbus, Dayton, and Youngstown could borrow more than $1,000,000 each.

With the voters' approval, bonds could be issued only against 70 per cent of the unencumbered delinquent real estate taxes in the sub-division.

The house and senate also were attempting today to agree on a plan proposed last week which would permit counties and cities to borrow against anticipated 1939 sales tax receipts, a portion of which go into the relief fund.

Meanwhile prospects appeared bright in the legislature for the enactment of the welfare building program bill which would raise (Continued on Page 20, Col. 4)

DELAYS HEARING

Court Grants Defendants' Plea in Personal Tax Cases.

At the request of the defendants, Judge C. H. Huston today had continued a hearing on the right to inspect county tax books in four personal tax cases now pending in county common pleas court. No date was set for the hearing which had been scheduled for Friday.

The defendants in the suits, filed by Michael Hallabrin, Mansfield, include executors of the estates of the late Frank B. Black, and Burton Preston, and J. A. Rigby, and Harry S. Black.

Defendants, who recently obtained a temporary injunction enjoining counsel for Hallabrin from checking their personal tax payments over a period of four years, told the court they needed more time to obtain counsel and to study the cases.

The suits seek to compel the defendants to show how much personal tax they paid from 1926 to 1930, and contend that payments were incomplete.

COOL BREEZES TO ROUT HEAT

Cloudy Tonight, Possible Showers, Forecast; Mercury Hits 90.

Cloudy skies and cool breezes may rout the three-day heat wave which sent the mercury to 90 degrees yesterday for the highest mark of the year.

It will be mostly cloudy tonight and Friday with possible local showers, the weatherman predicted.

Yesterday's high was one degree warmer than the reading Tuesday when the temperature climbed to 89. The low last night was 63 degrees, and the 24-hour average, 76.5, or about seven degrees above normal.

Opens Drive For Signatures to Put Park Board Plan on Ballot

A city-wide drive to obtain the signatures of 2,000 qualified voters that will place the question of creating a non-partisan park commission on the ballot at the November election, was launched today by the Chamber of Commerce.

Meeting at the C. of C. headquarters last night, G. V. Sowers, chairman of the parks and city beautification committee, distributed 25 petitions among members of the committee and the Mansfield Public Parks association. He explained that while only 900 signatures are necessary, every effort will be made to obtain 2,000 in order to make doubly sure that the question will be placed on the ballot without fail.

Savage Beating Sends Maxie to Hospital; Bone In Back Broken

Schmeling's Bid to Regain Title Ends in Quick Knockout

Any doubt as to Joe Louis' claim to the heavyweight boxing championship of the world was eliminated last night when the title holder knocked out Max Schmeling of Germany after two minutes and four seconds of fighting before 72,000 spectators in New York. The photo above shows the challenger prostrate on the canvas, with Louis and Referee Arthur Donovan standing over the fallen fighter. Schmeling was knocked down three times. Schmeling was the fourth ex-heavyweight champion to fail to regain his crown. Others who found the comeback trail too tough were Jim Corbett, Jim Jeffries, Bob Fitzsimmons and Jack Dempsey.

KALLMERTEN ON DEM SIDETRACK

Columbus Reports Indicate Davey Prefers Nolan as Poulson's Successor.

John F. Nolan, Steubenville Democratic leader, apparently has replaced E. B. Kallmerten, Richland county Democratic executive chairman, as Governor Davey's choice for state Democratic executive committee chairman, Columbus political authorities indicated today.

The supposition, of course, is that the governor will win a third term and will be in a position to recommend for the chairman's post.

Kallmerten, a friend of Davey, previously had been mentioned as the likely successor to Francis W. Poulson, Cleveland, who has announced he will retire after the Aug. 9 primary and return to his private law practice.

When he was first mentioned for the post several weeks ago, Kallmerten said he would take it if the governor wanted him. Kallmerten was out of the city today and could not be reached for comment.

Davey and Nolan have been on friendly terms. Recently Nolan figured in the senate investigation of state departments.

The inquiry disclosed that Nolan was a stockholder in the Shaw Transport, Inc., which held a contract to haul state liquor although it had no trucks. Nolan and other officers of the firm contended that the hauling contract was sub-let as an accepted business practice.

GETS $137,750

Wooster College Gifts Revealed at Synod Meeting.

WOOSTER—(AP)—Gifts to Wooster college for the past year totaled $137,750, President Charles F. Wishart told the Presbyterian synod of Ohio at its closing session today. Wooster hopes for a $2,000,000 increase in endowment and four new buildings for its diamond jubilee in 1941, Wishart said.

500 MANSFIELD FANS GAY TODAY

They're Strong for Indians After Witnessing Double Victory.

Some 500 Mansfield followers of the Cleveland Indians were back home today, a little tired perhaps, but happy.

They were part of the mammoth crowd of nearly 70,000 which witnessed the front-running Indians' double victory over the New York Yankees in the Cleveland Stadium yesterday. The scores were 3 to 1 and 7 to 1.

The twin victory has about convinced the Mansfield fans that the Indians are of championship caliber, judging from the enthusiastic remarks today.

REDS NO. 1 FAN

Butcher Says He'll Close For Cincy World Series.

CINCINNATI—(AP)—Cincinnati's No. 1 optimist and booster for the Cincinnati Reds was found today in the person of Ralph Stocker, meat store operator.

A sign on Stocker's place of business read:

"This store will be closed all day, the opening day of the world series, Cincinnati Reds vs. (blank), October, 1938."

Traditional 'Boom' to Be Missing Again on July 4th

City to Celebrate Second 'Noiseless' Independence Day But There'll Be Bangs Aplenty at Fairground.

For the second successive year Mansfield will celebrate the Fourth of July without the traditional "boom," or the continual "bang, bang" of small firecrackers which in former years sent citizens to the country for the preservation of aching eardrums.

Police Chief Meade K. Bates said today the only "bang" would be in the two-year-old city ordinance which prohibits the purchase or use of fireworks within the city limits. It will be enforced, even though the parents pay for the "sins" of the children, for parents will be prosecuted where children buy fireworks outside the city and smuggle them in, he warned.

Celebration At Fairground.

That doesn't mean, however, that youngsters must forget all about shooting stars, red light and bursting shells on the Fourth. These will be provided at the community celebration at the county fairgrounds—where there will be no danger of mangled hands and burned eyes. One of the most elaborate displays of fireworks in this part of the country is promised for Mansfield by the Public Parks association.

The ordinance prohibiting the purchase of fireworks in the city was amended two years ago by city council to prohibit the use of them and a single "pop" in any neighborhood may bring a police car within a few minutes, Bates said.

The chief warned against selling fireworks just outside the corporation limits.

"There is nothing the city can do about it, and the county either, in the absence of a state law prohibiting the sale and use of fireworks," he said. "But we can, and will prosecute to the fullest extent of the law persons using them within the city limits."

U. S. PROTESTS

Forestalls Publication of 'Inside Story' of Spy Case.

NEW YORK—(AP)—On guard against possible disclosures of its spy hunt secrets, the federal government went to court today in an effort to prevent publication of newspaper articles advertised as the inside story of the indictment of an alleged German espionage syndicate.

Immediate appearance of the stories, by Leon G. Turrou, resigned ace G-man who was chief investigator of the spy plot, was forestalled yesterday when Federal Judge Murray Hulbert signed an order directing the New York Post to show cause today why it should not be restrained from publishing the series.

U. S. Attorney Lamar Hardy obtained the order after reading a double-page advertisement in which the Post announced the 21 stories would begin today.

FORGET DREAMERS IF WE ARE TO KEEP LIBERTY, G. O. P. WARNED

Declaring that American democracy has been an emblem of liberty for 151 years, Judge C. C. Sherrick of Ashland, member of the Fifth district appeals court, last night in a talk at North Lake park, urged more individual thinking and less following of dreamers if we would preserve our heritage of liberty.

Judge Sherrick spoke at a joint meeting of the Republican John Sherman club and the Richland County League of Republican Women, as county Republicans made their first primary campaign gesture.

"All the isms and cure-alls we've been trying in the past few years were tested centuries ago and failed to accomplish results then," said Judge Sherrick. "Now it's time for all of us to do some thinking for ourselves."

He urged the reading of the Constitution in observance of the Fourth of July, and added that "we owe it to our posterity to preserve it and its meaning through years to come."

Criticizing any attempts to alter the present American system of government, Judge Sherrick said: "An economic system that has built as great a nation as ours in so little time should not be scrapped."

Approximately 60 persons attended the session which was in charge of Mrs. Helen Young, secretary of the county Republican central committee, and Mrs. Bessie Hughes, head of the Republican women's organization.

P. O. ADDITION DUE NEXT YEAR

Work on $180,000 Project to Be Started in January, U. S. Engineer Says.

Work on the $180,000 addition to Mansfield's postoffice building probably will be started in January or shortly thereafter, according to Nathan Abramson, construction engineer with the procurement division of the treasury department, who is in Mansfield this week making a survey of the present building.

Abramson said it would take approximately four months for architects to complete plans for the addition, another month to advertise for bids and another month or six weeks to get actual work started.

The project will be financed from the huge federal spending fund, probably will be a basement and one-story L-shaped addition across the back and east side of the present building, giving approximately 6,000 square feet of (Continued on Page 20, Col. 1)

COLUMBUS—(AP)—Charges that Marion relief workers rode to relief stations in taxicabs to receive their weekly checks will be investigated by a special house of representatives relief committee, A. Lee Fair, (D) Holmes, chairman of the special house relief investigating committee, announced today.

Fair said a five-member committee would be appointed and would go to Marion to investigate the charges this afternoon.

BRITISH MOURN

Countess, Mother of Queen Elizabeth, Stricken.

LONDON—(AP)—King George VI decreed only family mourning for Queen Elizabeth's mother, the 76-year-old Countess of Strathmore and Kinghorne, who died early today.

He still had not decided, however, whether to alter plans for a royal visit he and Queen Elizabeth are scheduled to make to Paris next Tuesday.

The funeral will be held June 27 at Glamis Castle, the family home in Scotland.

The countess, wife of the Earl of Strathmore and Kinghorne, had been gravely ill of heart trouble for some time.

Despite her high birth, the countess shunned society and court life. Elizabeth is the youngest of her ten children.

MODEL STABBED

Hollywood Beauty Wounded by Street Corner Assault.

HOLLYWOOD, Calif.—(AP)—Drucilla Faddis, beautiful artist's model and movie extra, who was stabbed three times last night on a street corner, was unable to give police any explanation today for the attack. She was in a hospital but her condition was not serious.

Miss Faddis, 22, said the man stabbed her three times while she was waiting on a street car.

NO DEFENSE

Hague Won't Resist Free Speech Charge in Jersey.

NEWARK, N. J.—(AP)—Mayor Frank Hague's counsel announced in federal court today they would offer no defense to CIO and American and Civil Liberties union charges that he and other city officials abrogated free speech and assembly in Jersey City.

Hague had been on the witness stand before Judge William Clark for five and a half days.

CITES 'CURE' FOR TUBERCULOSIS

Iowa Physician Claims New Curative Agent, Colleague Plan to Study It.

(By International News Service) SAN FRANCISCO—The Great White plague—tuberculosis—against which medical science has for more than a half century waged an alternating winning and losing battle, soon may be vanquished.

A small-town Iowa doctor, whose name has not yet been revealed by the profession, made an enthusiastic claim to that effect before ten members constituting the executive board of the American College of Chest Physicians convening here.

If the reported cure proves efficacious, the man whose identity was withheld may one day take a place in history's hall of fame for defeating a disease responsible for a great percentage of all deaths.

The new curative agent, it was reported, is a recently evolved strain of tuberculin, a culture of the tuberculous bacillus, advanced without notable success by the Researchist Koch 50 years ago as a possible cure for the plague.

Without passing on its merits the board declined to permit the presentation of the findings to the larger body without further tests.

Indicating extreme interest, however, the board directed a laboratory committee to subject the reported new strain to close examination.

MOOSE CONVENT

Mansfield Lodge Will Send Delegation to Akron.

A delegation of at least 25 Mansfield members of the Loyal Order of Moose will attend the lodge's annual three-day convention which opens in Akron Friday.

Delegates of the Mansfield lodge will be Firth Griffith, dictator, and Fied J. Berry, secretary. L. D. Perry of Mansfield will be the delegate of the Central Ohio Legion. They will leave Friday morning.

Earl A. McFarland of Mansfield, who is president of the sixth Ohio district of the Moose, was in Akron today to attend a meeting of district presidents. McFarland is a member of the convention resolution and nominating committees.

A feature of the convention will be a parade to be held at 7 p. m. Saturday. The business sessions will be held at the Mayflower hotel.

Could Hardly Arise From Bed

Poor Elimination Brought Intense Back and Limb Pains with Stiff Sore Muscle Joints

World's Tonic Brought Marvelous Help from Faulty Elimination And It's Resultant Suffering

"I sometimes think that people don't know what real agony is unless they have been through the pounding backaches and throbbing of stiff sore muscles and joints like I have," says Mr. Paul Mittrao 1518 Almain Place Massillon Ohio.

"When I've seen mornings come when I felt like there was a pain in every muscle and joint I had I could barely raise my arms above my shoulders and many a morning I could hardly arise from bed without rubbing and massaging myself a long time. I was badly constipated all the time and poisons gathered which were not being properly eliminated. I can understand how these poisons might bring about the other complaints but it's a little hard to understand how just a few bottles of this World's Tonic could be so good. My constipation started to show improvement quickly and that seemed to carry away those poisons with it. They are not causing me all those aches and pains any more and I again enjoy that long lost good feeling that comes from a real night's sleep and get up easily in the morning without the old stiff, sore feeling which made getting up a torture. From now on there will always be a bottle of World's Tonic in my house and if my friends listen to me, it will be in their houses too."

No matter how much money you have spent no how many kinds of medicines you have tried without results, don't give up hope. Consider these honest and grateful expressions of relief from thousands of users, many of them living right here in town as your very neighbors. Talk to some of them. There must be reasons for all the good will this famous medicine with its roots and herbs and a stable alkaline is creating daily.

Indians Stretch Margin

67,459 See Tribe Take Pair From Yanks to Go in Front by 3 1/2 Games.

CLEVELAND (AP)—The Cleveland Indians, who a week ago appeared to be on the verge of "cracking up," today had overcome the jinx that the New York Yankees held over for years and as a result possessed a 3 1/2 game lead in the American league pennant chase.

The Indians accomplished the unexpected here yesterday when they turned back the world champion Yankees in both ends of a doubleheader. The scores were 1 to 1 and 7 to 1.

Second Largest Crowd.

The official paid attendance at the twin bill was 67,459 fans, the second largest crowd ever to see a regular week-day baseball program.

The top week-day crowd in history was 77,000 that saw New York and Detroit play a doubleheader in 1935 at New York.

Renowned as murderous hitters and a team that frequently breaks through to get runs in clusters, the Yankees' bats were silenced effectively by Mel Harder, Johnny Humphries and Johnny Allen yesterday.

Harder and Humphries teamed to grab the triumph in the opener, while Allen went through the nightcap in brilliant fashion.

Harder worked 7 1/2 innings, during which time he gave the Yanks one run and six hits. Manager Oscar Vitt removed him when New York made threatening gestures in the eighth round. Humphries came on and stopped the Men of McCarthy without a run. He permitted two safeties.

"Lefty" Gomez worked the opener for the Yanks and while he gave up only three hits one bad inning, the first, proved his downfall.

In the first inning Gomez walked Lyn Lary, and Bruce Campbell singled. Sammy Hale bunted to ward the box and Gomez attempted to force Lary at third. His throw was wild and both Lary and Campbell scored on the misplay and Hale took second from where he scored on Averill's single.

Gomez stopped Cleveland the rest of the way, but the Tribe did not need any more runs.

Collect 14 Hits.

In the second game Cleveland unleashed a 14-hit attack at the expense of Monte Pearson and Joe Beggs.

The Indians garnered one run in the second and three in the third off Pearson and then nicked Beggs for three more in the eighth.

Allen gave the Yankees only four hits, no two of which came in the same inning. The lone run made off him was in the sixth when a walk, a single and an outfield fly sent "Red" Rolfe across the plate.

Cleveland's attack in the nightcap was paced by Rookie Jeff Heath, who hammered out three safeties in four trips to the plate.

In an effort to sweep the series Earl Whitehill, veteran southpaw, was to take the mound for Cleveland today. "Bump" Hadley was to oppose him.

ILLNESS MAY FORCE HELEN TO DEFAULT

WIMBLETON, Eng. —(INS)—Helen Jacobs, believed to be in a "state of complete collapse," was not expected to continue play today in the Wimbledon tennis tournament. The Californian, winner of the championship two years ago and who has not been well recently, had to postpone yesterday's match with Miss Jean Ingram when she collapsed in a dressing room.

Yesterday's matches were featured by the return to Wimbledon competition of Mrs. Helen Wills Moody, who defeated her second round opponent, Mrs. Harry Hopman of Australia, by 6-4, 6-3, scores.

Eagles Trim Ontario, 8-7, In Sr. League

Scores Five in First to Win at Liberty Park.

The Eagles won over Ontario, 8 to 7, in a city recreation Senior baseball league game at Liberty park yesterday. The Eagles scored five runs in the first to take a lead they never relinquished. Ontario came within one run of tying the score in the sixth when they tallied six times.

Pitchers Hoff and Clow collected three hits apiece to lead the Eagles at the plate. Beal hit a triple and two singles for the Ontario club.

Willard Boy to Head Friendly House Card

MANSFIELD boxing enthusiasts will be offered another opportunity to see Phil Ganni in action Friday night when the Friendly House stages its annual outdoor show on its property along North Main street.

The name Ganni may not be familiar. He formerly fought under the name of Phil Pansy, and that's the reason Ganni may appear as a stranger in the lineup.

Ganni, who hails from Willard, has fought the best of the amateur boys in the 150-pound class, and has never yet tasted defeat.

The recent article saying Ganni lost to Frank Parker of Ashland in the recent J. A. C. tournament was incorrect.

Won In Lorain.

Ganni made his tournament debut in 1934 when he won the featherweight title in the eliminations held in Lorain. He won the 135-pound title in Mansfield in 1936, beating Pat Pangello of Galion.

In 1937, he annexed the 147-pound crown in Mansfield on a default and again won it this year, in addition to the Marion title. Ganni is managed by Joe Calabaria.

Ganni will appear in the main bout on Friday's card against an opponent yet to be selected, Mike Wentz, co-promoter of the show, announced today.

Wentz also said today that a "battle royal" has been arranged for Friday, and will include from four to eight participants. Included among the bouts on Friday are:

Paul Carbetta, Mansfield, vs. Frank Dolce, Crestline; Walt Kennedy, Ashland, vs. Tom Clemens, Mansfield; George Smith, Ashland, vs. Otis Scott, Marion; Vern Green, Bellevue, vs. Mel McKinley, Ashland; Carl Doerr, Marion, vs. George Weltner, Norwalk; Clair Greenwald, Norwalk, vs. Dale Oyster, Ashland; Bulldog Veach, Mt. Vernon, vs. Mike Ambers, Ashland; Ernest Vioch, Norwalk, vs. Bill Scott, Marion; Beuford Glover, Mansfield, vs. Ray Howman, Ashland; Paul Timman, Norwalk, and Don Matthews, Marion.

Ducats on Sale.

Tickets are on sale at Hunt's News depot, Musille Cigar store, Beeber-Ross restaurant, Whitey's Lunch, Brownie's Lunch, HalBark store, Sferro Lunch and Friendly House.

Springfield 18, Akron 1. Erie 6, Charleston 3. Dayton 12, Canton 11. Portsmouth 12, Johnston 2.

MARION—Three five-mile elimination races and a 25-mile sweepstake are included on the dirt track auto racing card to be put on in Marion Sunday.

Dominion, Nick's Clubs Win To Remain in First Place

Miller Dairys Dropped Out of Tie by Losing to Tappan Stoves, 22-4, In Commercial League.

THE Dominion Electric and Nick's Club continued to share first place in the Y. M. C. A. Commercial softball league today, and Nick's athletes did not even have to throw a ball to retain their lofty position.

Nick's team won on a forfeit from Sweet's Gulf Oils, while the Dominion club edged the Hartman Electric, 3 to 2, in the best ball game of the day at Empire field.

Hits were not scarce, but neither team was able to bunch its blows effectively. This was due to some extent to the splendid "clutch" pitching of Shaffer of the Dominions and Lucas of the Hartman club. The Dominions cinched the ball game in the seventh with two runs. Mathias hit a home run for the losers.

Miller's Dairys were knocked out of a tie for the lead when they dropped a one-sided 22 to 1 decision to the Tappan Stoves at Liberty park. The heretofore undefeated Dairys never were in the ball game after the Stoves tallied seven runs in the first frame. Durg limited the Dairys to six hits.

Smith pounded out a home run, triple and double and Kleer collected three singles for the Stoves. Miller also hit a home run for the winners.

Marks' Market, riding in first place in The News-Journal Women's golf league, will meet the Liberty Shoes in the feature match in the second week of play at Possum Run at 1 p. m. Friday. The Shoes are tied with Strome's Grocers for second place, one point behind the Market representatives.

Empire Game Tops Y Loop

What stacks up as one of the more promising games on Friday's Y. M. C. A. Club softball league schedule brings together the Schoolmasters and Catholic Foresters at Empire field.

The Foresters are in second place and the Schoolmasters, who lost their first game to the Local 40 last week, are only a few percentage points behind.

The undefeated Zent's Radio club meets J. A. C. at Liberty park, while Local 40 tackles the Wesco club at North park, and Knights of Columbus meet the Hermits at Prospect park.

AMBERS' INJURY MAY CAUSE POSTPONEMENT

LOS ANGELES —(UP)—Lightweight Champion Lew Ambers was enroute to New York today with an injured left hand that may cause postponement of his title bout with feather and welterweight Champion Henry Armstrong July 26. Ambers hurt his hand Tuesday night in winning a slow bout from Jimmy Vaughn of Cleveland. It was treated yesterday and will be x-rayed in New York.

Vander Meer On Hill Today

Gets Call Against Giants in Crucial Series.

NEW YORK —(AP)—Willy Bill McKeechie called on Johnny Vander Meer today to give the Cincinnati Reds treatment for a case of "bends," that ailment that divers and caisson workers get when they come up for air too fast.

Manager Bill Terry, whose Giants gave the Reds the bends yesterday, 6 to 4, put it up to Hal Schumacher to aggravate the ailment.

The Reds started out fine, with Paul Derringer getting back to his early season form for the first five innings. Meanwhile Ival Goodman and Ernie Lombardi whacked out their 17th and 10th home runs and gave Paul a 3-0 edge.

In the sixth, Alex Kampouris hit his first home run for the Giants. Come the seventh the Giants scored twice on singles by Leiber, Ott, Bartell, and pinch-hitter McCarthy. Walters relieved Derringer.

Come the eighth Ruppel singled, Ott and Leiber walked and Leslie and Bartell singled for three runs and the ball game. Walters was charged with the defeat.

HANK Steinbacher, rookie outfielder, got six hits in six trips to the plate as the White Sox trounced the Senators 16 to 3. The feat tied the American league record for a 9-inning game.

Scoring his 10th win of the year, Vernon Kennedy beat Lefty Grove and the Red Sox, 8 to 3, as Hank Greenberg hit his 17th homer. Jimmy Foxx assumed the major league leadership with his 20th four-sacker.

The Athletics hopped all over Howard Mills for 10 hits in seven innings and beat the Browns, 7 to 1. Harland Clift homered for the Browns' sole run as George Castor won his seventh game.

In the only other game, Ducky Medwick's homer and triple drove in three runs as the Cardinals beat the Bees, 4 to 2. Vince DiMaggio hit for the circuit for Boston. The Cubs were rained out in Philadelphia.

CINCINNATI CANCELS ALL EXHIBITION GAMES

NEW YORK —(UP)—With the Cincinnati Reds a definite national league pennant contender, General Manager Warren Giles today cancelled all exhibition games scheduled for the club. "The Reds will not play any exhibition games as long as they are in the thick of the pennant scrap," he said.

Work on $180,000 Project to Be Started in January, U. S. Engineer Says.

Additional floor space. The main lobby will be revamped, the entire building cleaned and stones repaired, Abramson said. Material matching the present structure will be used in the new building.

Additional space for administration offices and platform scales are included in the plans. The addition at the back will leave room for a wide drive next to Dickinson avenue.

Abramson said that plans for the building are proceeding despite the fact that the land to the east of the building, now occupied by the Mansfield Mutual Fire Insurance company, and on which the extension will be built, has not been acquired. Condemnation proceedings have been recommended in case the department and the insurance company cannot agree on a price.

Dale Horner, assistant secretary of the Mansfield Mutual, said the company had been notified.

STOLEN YACHT VOYAGE ENDS

American Youths Detained by Authorities in Mexico.
SANTA CRUZ, Cal.—(AP)—After 28 days at sea, a voyage by three adventurous boys in a "borrowed" $25,000 yacht was believed ended today at a tiny west Mexican port 2,000 miles south of here.

Lew K. Foote, owner of the yacht, prepared to leave by plane tomorrow for Puerto Vallarta, where the boys were reported held by Mexican officials.

First indication of the whereabouts of the yacht Tira came yesterday in a telegram from Puerto Vallarta to Lester Easley, a friend of the three high school boys, Lyle Tara, 17, James Henninger, 17, and William Grace, 16, all of Santa Cruz.

BARBARA TURNS TO U. S. IN TIFF

Woolworth Heiress Seeks to Regain Citizenship; Gets Warrant for Count.

possibility of a separation with the count, it was learned, and in the course of these conversations the subject of finances was considered. Differences of opinion have arisen between them on this point, it was learned.

Whereabouts Unknown.
It was understood that if he should fly from Paris to Croydon airport, the count would be met by his wife's legal representative and accompanied by them to Bow street police court.

Immediately a series of conflicting reports were received here from Paris as to the count's whereabouts and actions.

Despite various reports to the contrary, private advices to International News Service indicated definitely that Count Haugwitz-Reventlow was still in Paris. He was reported conferring with Franklin Hutton, father of Countess Barbara, in Hutton's hotel suite.

Earlier, British news services had reported the count en route from the French capital to London aboard an Imperial Airways plane. Imperial Airways denied this.

'All Mixed Up,' Papa Hutton Says.
PARIS — (INS) — "All I can say is that these children have been in some sort of a misunderstanding. It's all mixed up and it's all too bad."

The speaker was dapper, grey-haired Franklin L. Hutton, the father of Countess Barbara von Haugwitz-Reventlow, who thus gave to International News Service the first "family" version of the dispute over custody of her two-year-old son that has stunned the society of two continents.

Hutton was encountered while he was lunching with Count Kurt von Haugwitz-Reventlow, the Danish nobleman who married the Woolworth heiress, in the Palm Garden of the Ritz-Carlton hotel.

They occupied a center table and lunched on melon and chicken while 75 other smartly-dressed diners did their best not to stare.

"I told you yesterday that I didn't know where my son-in-law was," Hutton declared, "and that was the truth. I really didn't know where he was at that time and I was greatly surprised to see him here in this hotel later in the evening."

"Please do not ask me to say much now. This whole affair has been a surprise to me. It's all up in the air and very much mixed up."

Haugwitz-Reventlow took no part in this conversation but preserved a smiling, affable air until the correspondent of the London Daily Mail, which this morning published a purported "interview" with him, entered the restaurant.

Pointing his finger at the reporter the count shouted: "You get out of here! That story your paper published was all lies. Do you hear me?"

"I wasn't interviewed by you."

Montana Train Wreck Toll To Reach 46.
MILES CITY, Mont. — (AP) — Nine persons were listed today as still missing in the wreck of the Milwaukee's road's "Olympian" in which the death toll is expected to reach 46.

Railroad officials said 40 bodies had been recovered, of which 37 were identified.

CITY FROWNS ON NEW RELIEF LAW

more than $13,500,000 for repairs and construction at state institutions. The program would make work for 100,000 men, it was said.

Proposed by the Davey administration, the welfare building program measure received the unanimous approval of the senate and indications were that it would be passed by the house late today.

Republican leaders said they would not oppose the program but would attempt to make the proposed state building authority with power to issue bonds for the state share of the construction costs a four-man bi-partisan commission.

Under the present plan, the authority would consist of three members, not more than two of whom could belong to the same party.

FIND BOY'S BODY
COLUMBUS — (AP) — An all-night hunt for Patsy Circelli, 15, ended today with the finding of his body in a creek. He was drowned while swimming.

If you want to do something for me, go ahead and deny your story."

Hutton was shown a cable inquiring about reports that Reventlow was asking a settlement of $2,500,000.

"It hasn't come to that," he said with a groan.

"The count broke in and asked to see the cable."

"Don't show it to him," Hutton said.

"Why can't I see it?" the count asked.

"It would only upset you," Hutton declared.

Reventlow insisted, however, and finally Barbara's father said: "Oh, all right. Go ahead and read it. But it will only upset you."

"The count read the cable carefully and then said: 'You can deny that. We haven't come to that. We haven't gone that far yet.'"

"We really don't know where we are just now," Hutton declared. "You can see that my son-in-law and I are good friends."

"These young people are just a couple of kids who have had a little fuss. It is just a little flare-up. I've had the same sort of thing in my time."

CONFER TODAY

FHA Engineers See Latest in Westinghouse Appliances.

Approximately twenty Federal Housing Authority engineers and architects from Ohio, Michigan, and Pennsylvania conferred at the Mansfield Westinghouse plant today on the latest developments in the electrical appliance industry.

Sponsored by James Hugo, Westinghouse merchandise sales promotion manager in the Central district, and J. L. Wagoner, East Pittsburgh, manager of the company's panel board sales department, the meeting included a display of the latest in household and laundry equipment.

Westinghouse officials from East Pittsburgh and Mansfield spoke before the group of guests which included the men in charge of planning and building the low-cost housing and slum clearance projects in the midwest.

In the group was George E. Evans, of Pittsburgh, state chairman of the U. S. housing committee.

Use Less Paint

CHEAP PAINT

LOWE BROTHERS HIGH STANDARD HOUSE PAINT costs less per square foot of surface painted and outlasts ordinary paints—both of these merits are due to its high quality. Some low-grade paints analyzed by recognized laboratories were found to contain 63% of water and other evaporating liquids. This left only 37% of film-forming solids to protect the surface. Lowe Brothers High Standard Liquid Paint contains 90% of protective film-forming solids. Be sure of better results and more pleasing effects before you paint. Come in and see Lowe Brothers Pictorial Color Chart showing actual painted reproductions of new and modern color schemes.

MAXIE SENT TO HOSPITAL

Louis' Hefty Kidney Punch
Fractures Bone in Back,
X-Rays Reveal.

he had been dragged to his corner from the middle of the ring.
Rubbing his glove on his right side, he gasped:
"I'm paralyzed."
It was apparent that he was badly hurt and D. Walker, wear of the boxing commission ordered him to Polyclinic for examination.
Accompanied by Joe Jacobs, his manager, and a number of bodyguards and handlers, Schmeling entered the hospital and was assigned to a private room where a veil of secrecy was drawn and orders given not to tell the nature of his injuries.

After earlier claiming that Schmeling had been brought to his apartment from the hospital, Jacobs admitted that the statement was wrong. But he maintained that Schmeling may be out of the hospital within 24 hours.

Injuries Painful.
"I saw him this morning," said Jacobs, "and he was still suffering terribly. His injuries are very painful but not serious."

"I took him to the hospital after the fight last night and the doctors spent two hours taking X-ray pictures. The pictures show two fractured bones near the base of the spine in what is known as the transverse process. Joe Louis' right hand punch to the kidney did that."

"They tell me Max will be able to leave the hospital within 24 hours. I'll know definitely about that after our own physician, Dr. Robert Emery Brennan, examines him today."

Jacobs said Schmeling had talked to his wife—Anny Ondra, famous Czech-born German actress—from the hospital but refused to disclose the nature of the conversation.

Jacobs said that one of Chancellor Adolf Hitler's aids had called Max from Germany, asked him about his condition and told him "not to worry."

Mayor Backs Park Board Plan

Mayor Claude M. Hunter is shown here as he became the first Mansfielder to sign a petition for the creation of a non-partisan park board. A Chamber of Commerce committee is seeking enough signatures to place the proposal on the ballot in November. At the left, Judge

C. H. Huston, president of the Chamber of Commerce looks on. Oliver C. Henkel, chairman of the C. of C. subcommittee in charge of circulating the petitions, is seated at the right. Judge Huston was the second person to sign and Henkel the third. A total of 2,000 signatures is being sought.

vance speculation as to just what attitude official Germany would adopt in the event Schmeling was beaten by a colored opponent.

Although Joe Jacobs intimated his belief that the punch that crippled Schmeling was a foul blow, there was little support for that contention from competent observers.

SCOUTS SERVE AS PALLBEARERS

SHELBY—Funeral services for Alvin Colligan Bourgeois, 12, son of Mr. and Mrs. A. M. Bourgeois, Auburn street, who was instantly killed Monday when he was accidentally shot by his playmate, were held today at the Most Pure Heart of Mary church with Rev. Michael McFadden officiating.

Burial was made in the parish cemetery. The K. of C. lodge and St. Mary's school pupils paid respect to the boy at the home last night. The Boy Scouts, of which Alvin was a member, were honorary pallbearers.

Upward Movement Can Start NOW!

SEVERAL happenings of the past few days tend to indicate that June can be made a turning point in the depression and that there can be an upward trend toward recovery—starting now.

In order to accomplish this, however, more people must snap out of the mental depression in which they have been engulfed and must vision the latent possibilities of this country to develop a sound prosperity greater than any heretofore experienced.

Like it or not, the federal government is entering on a vast spending-lending program intended to reduce unemployment and stimulate industry and business.

This alone will not be sufficient to bring any permanent benefits. Unless there is co-operation of industry, labor, business, agriculture, and all other elements entering into national life, expenditure of billions of dollars of taxpayers' money will be merely that much more wasteful extravagance.

Unless these pump-priming billions release other billions for use in production of commodities required to meet the demand that will result from greater purchasing power of the increased number of people who can then be employed, there is little to hope for in the immediate future.

It is difficult, under conditions such as have existed during the past several years, to minimize partisan thinking, especially in the midst of this year's violent campaigning, but it should not be overlooked that interests of the United States of America stand above the interests of any political party and that regard for the national welfare must take precedence over political preferences or antagonisms.

In a statement yesterday President Roosevelt expressed the opinion that "business—including farming—has not been as bad as a lot of people believed it to be."

Secretary of Commerce Roper believes "business statistics indicate a business and industrial upturn is likely this summer, or at least by fall."

"Announcement has been made," he said, "of large sums to be expended for plant expansion and improvement, under realization that where no wealth is created, none can be accumulated or distributed. . . . The merchant, the wholesaler and the manufacturer should prepare now to turn with the tide in order to avoid lost motion in the upward swing."

Among encouraging factors Secretary Roper listed reduction of excess inventories in the hands of retailers and wholesalers, and removal of legislative uncertainties by the adjournment of congress.

Another encouraging sign is the recent action of labor unions in attempting to rid their ranks of communists and alien agitators who have been largely responsible for sit-down strikes, property destruction and other contributions to discord and disorder which must be eliminated if there is to be fair approach toward solution of the large problem of providing employment for everyone who is mentally and physically able and willing to do some kind of necessary work.

Now is the time, if ever, when every shoulder should be at the wheel, in an effort to get the national machinery out of depression mire—and for everyone to start thinking "It can be done," instead of croaking, "The worst is yet to come."

South America Is Buying.

OUR foreign trade with Europe has been lagging lately, but our Latin-American trade is doing very well. And this in spite of the difficulties caused by political troubles in Mexico. The head of the foreign banking branch of a big midwestern bank reports that 60 per cent of the exports handled by his department last year went to South America, and of them 90 per cent were taken by two countries.

"There are 100,000,000 people down there," he says, "and I think our trade future lies there. Argentina and Brazil are our very good markets. Uruguay and Peru are next. Brazil has always co-operated with this country. Just a few weeks ago they abrogated their barter treaty with Germany."

"The market is competitive, but we excel and have first preference. I think we can look for a fairly normal trade development. The good will this nation has been generating there is not in vain."

Contrary to a general belief, he adds, such business is not risky. The credit losses on exports compare favorably with domestic losses, and in some cases the foreign record is better. This commerce is a far different thing from the foolish exportation of American capital, invested in doubtful Latin-American bonds, in which our people used to lose considerable money.

Mental Treatment Improves.

MENTAL ailments are said to be increasing faster than the population in this country. The great stress and strain of modern life and especially the economic insecurity of the depression years are leading factors in this development.

The situation is not hopeless. According to the head of a state hospital, the increase may not be so large as it appears. More people nowadays enter hospitals for mental treatment who would not have done so in the past. And there is reason to believe that more of them will be promptly and properly treated and will emerge fully recovered. New and effective methods have been discovered for handling some kinds of cases formerly baffling.

A specialist says children are not easily fooled by certain types of juvenile books—and there's also an impression that the stork theory has lost ground this week.

Scientific study indicates that dogs also have nervous breakdowns—so maybe it isn't safe to let the world go to them.

As Robert Quillen puts it: "Feeding a helpless man isn't kindness if you first tie his hands so he can't feed himself."

Some folks can remember when Cleveland's greatest ambition was to surpass Cincinnati in population figures.

America is a country of religious liberty, in which a man can stay away from any church he chooses.

Keeping Step

—By LESLIE EICHEL

EASY CREDIT fails to create demand," says a headline. It is true—as everyone having anything to do with finance knows.

In fact, there is easy credit because there is so little demand for credit — by large corporations. That is, corporations whose credit rating is the highest. But even the small corporation needs no extra credit today, unless its financial condition is bad.

The government is creating or forcing vast credit reserves in order to provide cheap credit. New financing by large corporations to refund higher rate issues and to provide working capital is being obtained at extremely favorable rates. Standard Oil of New Jersey is preparing to issue $50,000,000 in 2 1/2 per cent debentures and $35,000,000 of serial notes. Only governments hitherto have been able to obtain money at such a low rate. Yet the Standard Oil issue will be oversubscribed, as have all other recent high-grade issues.

When two years ago Standard Oil of New Jersey and General Motors Acceptance Corporation set a low of issues at 3 per cent, the financial world believed that the bottom had been reached in low-interest bearing coupons. But now who can say whether they may not even be a coupon below 2 1/2 per cent?

The immense credit reserves, of course, help the government most of all. Its own issues, chiefly short-time paper, are bearing record low rates.

The U. S. treasury borrowed $100,000,000 last week at an all-time low rate of 16,000ths of one per cent, for 90-day bills.

NO DEMAND

The real barometer, however, is bank loans. Commercial loans are declining. A plethora of money will not create business. Business comes from trade. When trade advances, the demand for money, which is the medium of exchange, not the means of business, increases—and interest rates rise.

Banks, however, still have their own interest rates pegged above the level of supply and demand. Some persons say that this is as bad for business as pegged prices in other spheres.

Some readers of this column have complained that banks seem unsympathetic to the smaller man, that they depend too much on large corporations. One writer quotes as an example an alleged antagonism of his local bank to housing loans, "even with good security."

Some banks seem angered by "government" interference with interest rates. As their business declines, they become more determined than ever to keep their own interest rates pegged.

BANK CHARGES

In turn, bank customers are becoming angered by various service charges.

But, as a bank official explained to me, what is a bank to do? It cannot afford to lose money handling accounts. That eventually would mean an unsafe bank. There had been too much of that prior to the debacle of 1933. Banks have become, largely, service institutions. Any other business charges for services performed.

The public, however, is not used to that.

DIFFICULT TO EARN

Banks, more so than individuals, are finding it difficult to place money in required securities that will give a modicum of earnings. Individuals take chances that a bank is not permitted to.

Insurance companies, too, are having a time of it making investments that will give a fair return. They are our largest investors, but always must pick prime securities. And prime securities, commercial and governments, are showing lower and lower returns.

Insurance companies, as the depression reaches its peak, are having larger borrowings on policies, too—and writing of new policies is showing a large drop—thus investments on their part may begin to decline. That might cause an increase in interest rates, on new issues, eventually.

But, bankers, economists and business men will tell you the same thing, trade is the solution. A plethora of credit and money will not turn the trick. What will bring trade? What will maintain trade, when it comes?

Timely Editorial

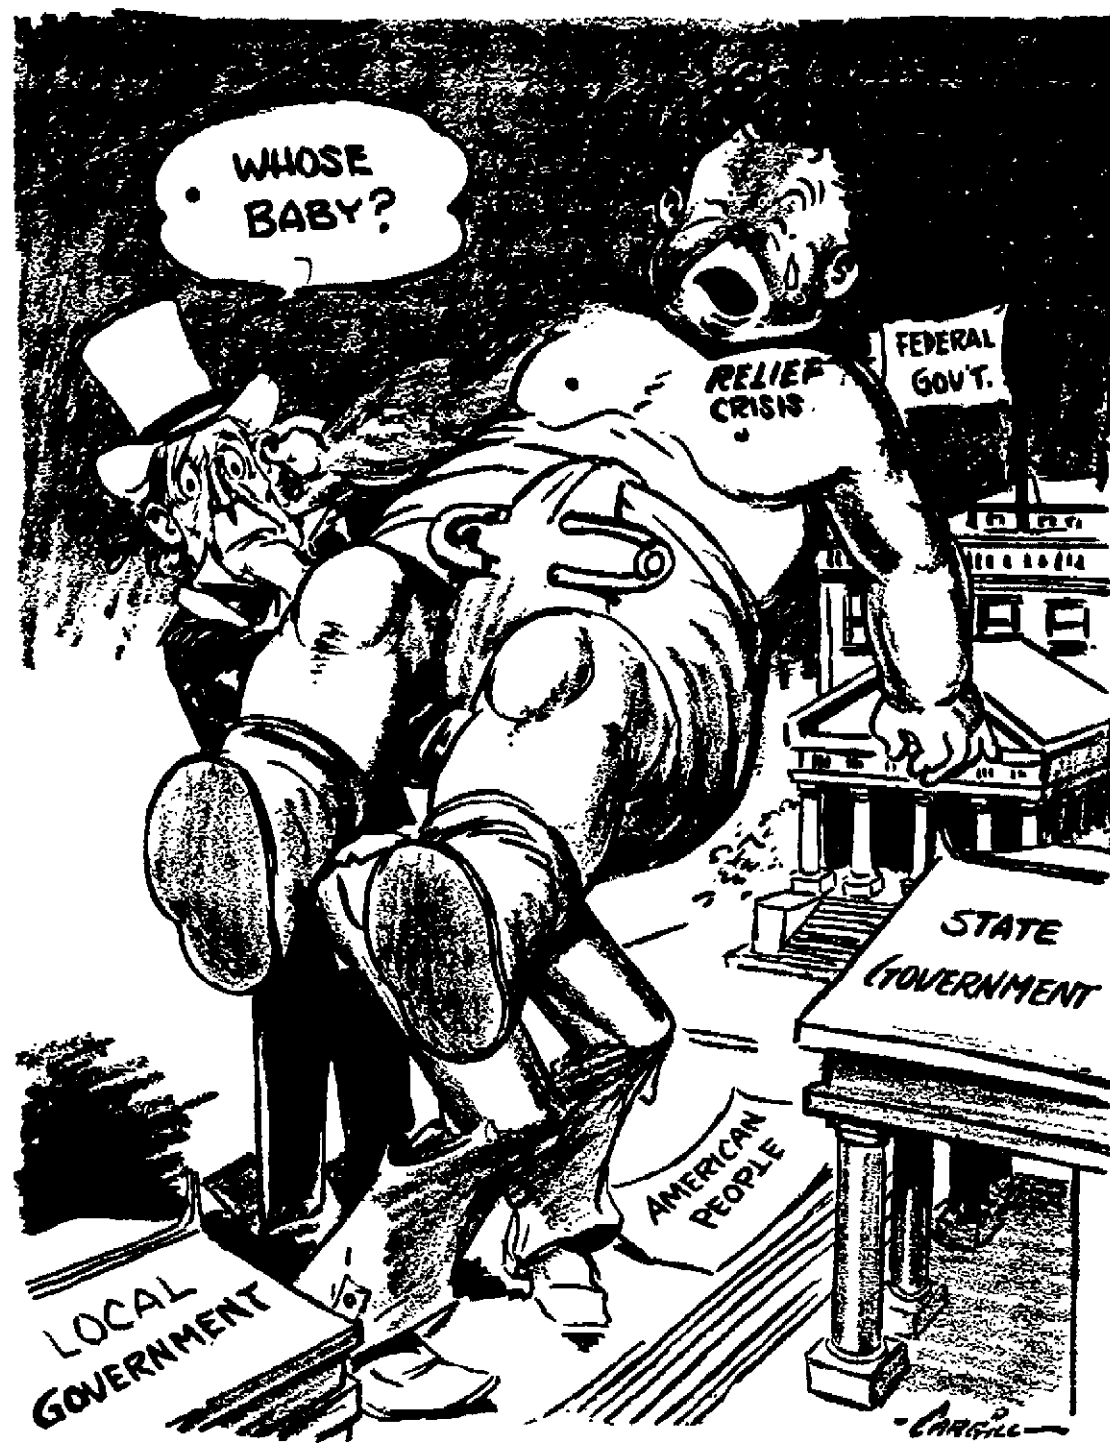

Europe As a Pattern.

It is becoming habitual these days for professional American malcontents to point to Europe as the shining example of how things may be better done. "They do not have this problem in Europe," "They have solved this on the continent." We have got accustomed to hearing such statements from many of us do not at the moment believe that even the malcontents would be willing to let us to chance places with any of the countries they tout. None of them seems to be getting his respects to take up residence there.

It is refreshing after such a diet to hear former President Herbert Hoover say, "The only problem not acute in Europe is parking space." That, it seems to us, is a realistic remark.

It is fine to study what Europe is doing, but, before we apply the European doctrine, it is well also to remember that they were evolving for people who for the most part are born, live and die in the same houses, people who carry on the old trades from father to sons for generations, people who would think that the millennium had come if there could be two bicycles in every woodshed.—Milwaukee Journal.

PARKING PROBLEM

Wheeler Peeves New Dealers

—By CHARLES P. STEWART

WASHINGTON—The New Dealers naturally hate Senator Burton K. Wheeler of Montana.

It did not hate him at first. That was natural, too. He always had been rather more than a liberal; a near-radical. The New Dealers began an investigation into the railroad problem when they came into office. As head of the senate's interstate commerce committee, Wheeler automatically gravitated into the chairmanship of this inquiry. The new Dealers were glad to see him directing it. It was a monumental task, and his worst enemies do not deny that the Montana statesman made a wonderfully good job of it. It was not led to anything yet, but that is because the New Dealers, having grown to hate him, have failed to act on his undoubtedly constructive suggestions.

The New Deal turned against him when he declared himself in opposition to President Roosevelt's federal supreme court reorganization plan. He not only opposed it. He developed into its opposition's leadership. He won his fight, moreover.

"UNFORGIVABLE"

In that lay the unforgiveness of his offense. He got away with it.

Now, a liberal can be a liberal and yet object to a so-called liberal administration's attempt to concentrate executive power in its own hands at the expense of the legislative and judicial branches of the government.

Senator Wheeler has been moderately successful at blocking executive efforts in this direction. In fact, he has been the anti-administration leader.

AS STEWART SEES IT

Well, after all, this administration has not been such a wonder at restoring good times—and keeping them restored. Of course it furiously resents Wheeler's criticisms.

It refers to the Montana solon as a renegade liberal. He HAS had some conservative support. His radicalism has been a bit moderate; even for his moderation conservatism has been a trifle thankful.

Nevertheless, conservatism does not essentially like Wheeler. I have heard him say that he wished Russian communism well—not as an ideal system but as an improvement on czarism. Such a remark!—to come from a conservative! Why, the Montanan might be questioned by the Dies investigators into anti-American activities!

CANDIDATE?

Wheeler is beginning to be talked about as a presidential possibility in 1940.

He has been a vice presidential candidate already.

It goes almost without saying that the conservatives do not want him presidentially.

But neither does the New Deal.

His past record is too awfully radical for the conservatives; now it is too conservative for the New Deal.

However—as a compromise? That is what both sides are afraid of, especially the New Dealers, who hate him worst just now, since he shows so much independence.

INFLUENCED?—BY WHAT? Conservative comment is somewhat charitable. It wants all it can get.

New Deal comment is venomous. Its version is that Wheeler has sold out to Anaconda Copper, et al. Phooey! Burton K. defied Anaconda Copper when he was a petty politician. Is it likely he would worry about it now, as a national presidential possibility?

They also assert that he has a lot of administrative "paw" in his home state.

Is THAT likely, considering that the administration is doing its utmost to beat him for re-election? Or, possibly, for the presidency? I would not think he would be a presidential nominee, but he might be.

Study Being Made of Twins, Hereditary Traits Noted

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

I have always been very much interested in twins. They present a perfect natural biological experiment. They both start out with the same heredity and at the same moment, and the amount of influence which heredity has on our lives can easily be measured by studying them.

This point of view appears to impress biologists a great deal during the present century and studies of twins are increasing. I find from Germany the report on a research on the sleeping habits of twins.

Is it possible to observe hereditary traits manifested whole consciousness is more or less obliterated by sleep? A study of this problem might shed light on certain specially conditioned functions of the mind manifested during consciousness.

There is a camp for twins on the Baltic coast, and here 26 pairs of female twins, ranging from 6 to 14 years were observed. The doctors who made the study distinguished two kinds of sleep—cortical sleep and axial sleep. In cortical sleep the consciousness is completely lost and dreams are absent, but the muscles of the body perform regular movements of turning over and getting into different positions. In axial sleep the muscles are quiet but the mind is only partially unconscious, resulting in moments of wakefulness and semi-wakefulness and in dreams. Every body must have experienced both types. In individuals, however, one type or the other is liable to predominate.

In children sleep-walking, gnashing the teeth and bed-wetting are evidence of predominant cerebral evidence.

Movements are Hereditary. The study of the sleep of twins, making these observations, is astonishingly confirmatory of the fact that most of our habits and movements are hereditary and beyond our control. Twins tend to go to sleep within the same period of time and to wake up almost at the same moment, even though they do not sleep in the same bed.

They exhibit the same habits during sleep. Both of them tend to be of the same type of sleepers: both of them tend to be tooth-grashers, somnambulists or bed-wetters. Some people wake suddenly with a start, others gradually, and twins are likely to have the same habits.

To read these reports is quite uncanny and makes one feel rather fatalistic.

Other recent studies in twins have concerned the appearance of allergy in twins. It is well known that allergy, such as hay fever and similar conditions, are hereditary. Hay fever occurs in from 7 to 10 per cent of the population. In hay fever families the percentage may be as high as 50 per cent, but in twins this percentage rises. If one twin has hay fever, the other twin will have it in from 80 to 100 per cent of cases. This also is true of migraine or sick headache. Many twins who have asthma due to food, they are both allergic to the same food.

DAILY BIBLE THOUGHT

GOD BLESS YOU TODAY:

Being a boss is an art, writes Howard Stephenson, former magazine editor and newspaperman, in the Commentator magazine—the art of being human.

Friendliness between employers and employees can be made to pay dividends on both sides, but in order to attain that state a peaceable way to settle disputes must be found. And an understanding of human nature can go a long way toward that end.

Such has been the philosophy of executives of the Scovill Manufacturing company, Waterbury, Connecticut, ever since its beginning in 1802, and such is becoming the philosophy of many other of the larger industries.

Questioned as to rules for the guidance of bosses, John H. Goss, in charge of labor relations for the Scovill company, lays down three principles of conduct:

1. Under no circumstances lose your sense of humor. If you

Are You Properly Adjusted For Smooth Performance?

—By ELSIE ROBINSON

NEEDED—in every school in America—COURSES IN PERSONALITY ADJUSTMENT. Lessons in human relationship. Practical instruction, from kindergarten through III, in the simple essentials of civilized behavior.

Under our present system, a youngster is taught practically everything on earth save the one essential requisite for a happy life—HOW TO GET ALONG WITH OTHER PEOPLE.

Each year sees new novelties added to the curriculum . . . tap dancing, flower arrangement, window trimming, endless devices for enriching one's personal store of information and catching the elusive penny.

But where will you find a class on that most indispensable of all human arts—HOW AND WHEN TO KEEP YOUR MOUTH SHUT? Yet it's a safe bet that more careers have been crippled by ignorance on this subject than by all the other handicaps put together.

Think of the various odd eggs whom you know—social domestic and industrial. The people whom everyone dodges at a party or avoids in the office. What's wrong with them? They're smart enough; capable, too. Decent, hard-working, kind-hearted folk, for the most part—desperately eager for popularity and success. Yet they never quite click. Why?

BECAUSE THEY'RE SOCIAL MISFITS. THEY HAVE NEVER BEEN ADJUSTED TO THE REST OF THE HUMAN RACE. AND, AS A RESULT, THEY ARE AS OUT OF PLACE IN NORMAL HUMAN GROUPS AS A FRESHLY CAPTURED ORANGE-UTANG.

There's Sam, the Boaster . . . and Gertie, the Gloom . . . Jimmy, the wise-cracker . . . and Tillie, with the Non-Stop Tongue. Also Bert, who uses the slightest statement as grounds for a seven-reel debate . . . or Fred, the Know-It-All . . . Parlor Panics, every one of them . . . just about as popular as a dose of HIVES.

AND EACH ONE OF THEM AN ARRANGEMENT OF OUR EDUCATIONAL SYSTEM. For few, if any of them, would have developed their irritating mannerisms if they had received proper training in their youth.

"Defense Mechanisms" — that's what psychiatrists call such mannerisms. Psychological cover-ups and compensations for past hurts and humiliations.

Pitiful? Yes? But also powerful pest—utterly unnecessary. No one HAS to develop an unpopular "defense Mechanism." And no one who is correctly informed and trained WILL develop one. We all have hurts and humiliations. But we can all and should learn how to manage them . . . and how to adjust ourselves harmoniously in spite of them.

And such instruction should be LESSON NO. 1 in every human life. No education is worthy of the name unless it has taught—and tested—the student's graciousness, self-control, good sportsmanship and social co-operation. It is not enough to merely observe and give marks on such attributes . . . they should be taught as definitely as Math or English Lit.

HOW WE ACT is infinitely more important than the other fellow than WHAT WE KNOW. You may be a walking encyclopedia, an animated joke book or a record-breaker in your particular line—but if you aren't also a gracious, tactful, self-controlled and comfortable human companion, no one wants you around.

How It Started

—By JEAN NEWTON

Getting Into a Scrape. Breaking a leg is as bad an aftermath as any of getting into a scrape; for our purposes, however, it is the best of all, for it is how it started.

The expression springs from the days when most of England was forest land.

Then, deer, running wild over the country, cut sharp gullies between the trees; they dug up the earth, scooping out with the forefeet holes from one to three feet deep.

These excavations were known as "scrapes," and into them, many a poacher, fleeing a game warden, would frequently fall, fracturing a limb or otherwise damaging himself.

This was the original significance of getting into a "scrape," that is, getting into, as our indispensable Webster phrases it, "a disagreeable and embarrassing predicament out of which one cannot get, without undergoing, as it were, a painful rubbing or scrape."

Some Requirements For Being a Boss haven't one, get some other top executive to meet the men. If you have no such men at the top, it's just too bad.

2. Under no circumstances lose your temper.

3. Don't say "No" on the first approach. Discuss their proposition. Submit a counter proposal, if advisable. But it must be a sound one. No generalities, no stalling. It must be something you can defend and sell to them.

It looks as though Goss had something there, says the Commentator. His company, employing 16,000 at peak, hasn't had a strike since it was founded 136 years ago.

model of Home Sap is considerably smarter, more capable and better informed than the 1883 output. But in one respect he's gravely lacking, and that is in his MANNERS. We're rapidly becoming the rudest bunch of smarties and showoffs, gabblers, grabbers and bullies the race has ever produced. Our movie manners alone should make the jungle jitters than heaven they're stuck to their tails.

No automobile manufacturer would dream of selling a car before it had been tested and perfectly adjusted for smooth action. And no child is fit to face life until he, too, can give a smooth performance. (Copyright, 1938.)

Man About Manhattan

—By GEORGE TUCKER

NEW YORK—Your pampered recumbent has had a very gratifying day, and if a record of his activities were chronologically set down they would appear something like this:

A. Gossiped two hours with Milton and Esther Caniff, who drove out from New York to bring me a bushel basket of fruit—luscious pineapples from Cuba, bananas from the West Indies, peaches from Georgia, lemons from Louisiana, Florida oranges, Texas pears, and apples.

B—Made a careful check of all my fishing tackle, as I plan to quit this bed of pain in the next few days and lie up to Mel Graff's place, way up beyond Amsterdam, in a wild wooded sector on a big watershed. We'll fish and rest for two days. He writes: "The muskies are running and yesterday a big 25-pounder was taken in the yonder cove." . . . Ah'm coming . . . ah'm coming, even if mah head . . . am . . . bending . . . low.

C—COMBED all the loose, fur out of Cynthia's coat. . . . And who is Cynthia anyway? She's crazy about me. She's my Persian cat, and she's 11 years old. . . . Had her ever since she could say "Or how bluejeans are making it tough for her. They scare the dickens out of her every time she goes out into the yard. . . . They must think she's after the baby bluejeans. . . . Well Cynthia isn't thinking about bluejeans meat. She likes kidney and fish. . . . I suppose she'd look sort of funny to you, if you ever saw her. . . . She used to have a tail as long as a setter's. . . . But not long ago the wind blew the door shut on it. . . . And pinched it off. . . . It's hanging on my tie-rack now, dangling with my neckties.

D—Finished reading "The Yearling" and then took my medicine. Took it like a little man, too. If you want a book that is so "readable" it hurts, I offer you "The Yearling." . . . You can smell the warm spring rains washing things clean.

E—RAN off some motion pictures of a hunting trip we went on last fall. First time I'd seen them. They were in color and very good, although what impressed were the red hunting shirts, there being little game. It seemed strange seeing one's self kicking through snow with the temperature hovering around 96 outside.

F—Which reminds me my own temperature is at normal. My appetite is subnormal. But do not let this condition alarm you, for sub-normal with me means that I am merely ravenous.

G—Well, the honeymoon is almost over. . . . Only a couple more days, the doctor says. . . . That means back to Siberia, back to the salt mines. . . . But it's been fun. . . . Boy, this being ill certainly is a racket. Wonder why I never thought of it before. (Miss Jones, remind me to try this again some time.) People being good to you . . . People fussing over you . . . Fixing you fried chicken "Can't I get some of this for you?" . . . Or wouldn't you like to have some of that?"

Sugar, I don't want to seem unappreciative, but I can't stand much more of this. . . . They're just naturally killing me with kindness.

BAG LIMIT ON RABBITS CUT IN NEW GAME LAW

Conservation Council Trims Daily Total to 4, Moves Up Bass Season.

Hunters in the Richland county area will be permitted to bag only four rabbits in a day instead of five next fall, but fishermen who go to Lake Erie for bass can start two weeks earlier this year, the Ohio Conservation council ruled today.

Changes in the state game laws, announced following a session of the council at Columbus, include a five-day extension of the open season on ring-neck pheasants and permission to shoot ruffed grouse in certain sections of the state. It will be the first time in 40 years that Ohio nimrods have had the opportunity to take grouse legally. The Lake Erie season on bass was moved up from July 15 to July 1.

Season Opens Nov. 15. As in the past few years the opening of the hunting season will commence at noon, Nov. 15. The pheasant season and the season on Hungarian partridge will extend until Nov. 30, inclusive.

A new regulation was adopted that only two cock pheasants and four Hungarian partridges may be in a hunter's possession at any one time. Previously, council members said, hunters found with more than two birds in their possession claimed two were taken the day before.

Ruffed grouse may be taken within certain restricted sections this season, the first time in 40 years Ohio hunters have had the opportunity to legally take this bird.

2 SETTLEMENTS OK'D BY COURT

Parents Authorized to Accept Damages For Children.

Parents of two Mansfield minors have received probate court authorization today to accept damages for injuries to their children in automobile accidents.

In a claim against Robert W. Lyon of Mansfield, Mr. and Mrs. Harold H. Taylor were instructed to accept $40 for injuries suffered by their daughter, Julia Ann Taylor, near Gallon last April 28. Costs amounting to $10.50 were assessed against Lyon.

The court authorized Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Purdy to settle for $26 for injuries received by their son, James, in a recent mishap. The claim will be paid by Fred Sturgeon.

There were no suits filed in either case.

Million Dollar Check Goes to President

President Roosevelt receives a check for $1,010,000, the result of the many birthday balls held last January, at his Hyde Park, N. Y., home. The check, which will be used to fight infantile paralysis, is shown being presented by Keith Morgan, chairman of the birthday celebration committee. Others in the photo are, left to right, Basil O'Connor, Averill Harriman, Dr. Leroy Hubbard and Clay Williams, all members of the board of the new National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis.

THEATER

PRODUCTION NOTES: Merle Oberon is brushing up her American-English speech for her role in "The Cowboy and The Lady."

Can this be the old stage play of Maxine Elliot and William Faversham which has been made into a movie several times? Gary Cooper will play the cowboy...

Although he leaves his boyish roles behind him forever, Harold Lloyd will still retain that bewildered innocence and unsophistication in "Professor Beware" and his climax follows the line he made famous...

This time it is to rescue the girl of his heart from her father's yacht. Poor Ray Milland, a really good actor with personality, is stuck with another of those South Sea Island roles with Dorothy Lamour in "Tropic Holiday."

Today's Headlines.

The most dramatic stories in today's newspapers are those that come out of Spain, and out of them John Howard Lawson, screen writer, has woven a gripping tale of a peasant boy who refuses to follow his people who move like dumb cattle over their own lands.

An entire sector, on the verge of starvation, awaits the coming of a food ship just entering the harbor which is blockaded by the enemy. And a submarine submerges to send a torpedo to sink it, as the starved civilians watch its progress.

This is one of the dramatic climaxes of "Blockade," a Walter Wanger production which opens at the Ohio today, with Henry Fonda and Madeleine Carroll, Leo Carrillo and John Halliday.

Continues Through Saturday.

Two days are left after today in which Mansfield people may see "The Birth of a Baby," the controversial film which several states have banned but which passed the Ohio board of censors practically untouched. The film

13 NO JINX FOR SCHOOLS, MOST CITY PUPILS IN THAT AGE GROUP

The number 13 may be the proverbial jinx, but there will be more pupils 13 years old in Mansfield schools next fall than in any other age group, enumeration figures compiled by Supt. W. L. Miller showed today.

The city's public and parochial schools will have a total enrollment of 7,324, of which 728 pupils will be 13 years old. The prospective enrollment is an increase of six pupils over last year's enumeration.

Boys will outnumber girls, 3,750 to 3,574, and there will be 385 first-graders, according to the figures compiled from reports submitted by parents of prospective pupils.

Based on age, there would be 514 seniors in the city's two high schools, but that number, it was pointed out, represents only pupils 18 years old who would normally be completing school.

Some of them will quit school before they graduate while others of that age may be a grade or more lower because of failure during their school careers, school officials said.

The figures indicate John Simpson will have an enrollment of 1,200 pupils to top the list in the city. Senior high school would be second with 1,195 pupils. The Woodland school, newest of the

is being shown here this week by the Special Pictures corporation at the Madison theater. It is a picturized story of the pre-natal development of a child and the responsibilities of the mother and father for the child. It is climaxed by actual birth scenes in close-up, taken at a hospital.

"Highway Patrol."

Jacqueline Wells and Robert Paige head the cast in Columbia's film "Highway Patrol," opening at the Majestic today. Paige plays a highway patrolman who is assigned to special duty patrolling the territory around an oil district which is involved in a bitter feud.

Efforts to blow the place up from the air gives the police officer something to keep him busy. Miss Wells is a militant daughter of a millionaire who first fights with the patrolman and later for him. The same bill brings the usual week-end Western film entertainment.

This week it is "Romance of The Rockies" with Tom Keene.

Movie Hero Flops.

A movie football hero who is a wow on the screen and a dud on the real gridiron is the hero of "Start Cheering," a Ritz feature for the last two days of the week. The cast is star studded with Jimmy Durante, Walter Connolly, Professor Quiz of radio fame, Gertrude Niesen, The Three Stooges, Hal LeRoy, Jimmy Wallington, Joan Perry and Charles Starrett.

Crawford Broderick, son of Helen Broderick, the stage and screen comedian, who made a hit in the Broadway show, "Of Mice and Men," is seen in a small role in this film. It's a college story which tells of a movie hero that tries to enroll in a college incognito. Bob Steele in "Thunder In The Desert" is also on the bill.

There is a genuine plot in "Brighton Rock." The actors, as mentioned before, are first rate. The background is real; the sense of dread and the ache of suspense which take hold on the first page are with the reader to the end. And there is something more—Mr.

made rather unwillingly, because as it was being written we could hear Mr. Greene's prospective audience running out the back door. And who can blame them, considering the stuff the book trade usually sells under that designation?

Make no mistake — "Brighton Rock" is genuine. It concerns a brief period in the noisome career of the most vicious 17-year-old in modern fiction. Admittedly, it is a little difficult to agree with Mr. Greene that The Boy could boss a tough mob at his tender age and considering his frail physique. You simply have to take that on trust, and go on from there. If you do, you'll never turn back until you reach the gory end.

You'll meet too many remarkable creatures, for one thing. Ida is the most astounding detective imaginable, Phil is the most incredible sort of lecher. Colleoni is a delicious specimen of the successful gangster. Drevitt could hardly have been better done if you yourself had set out to draw the perfect shyster lawyer. Rose is an amazing specimen of gutter-snipe, purified, paradoxically, by contact with viciousness. And so on, almost indefinitely.

Book of the Week

"BRIGHTON ROCK," by Graham Greene; (Viking; $2.50).

As is obvious from the price, "Brighton Rock" is no "murder mystery." It costs 50 cents more than a murder mystery.

Nevertheless, "Brighton Rock" has been filled with murder by its creator, Graham Greene. It is garish with mystery, although not the kind of mystery that supports the Crime Club and kindred ventures. But chiefly the novel is a psychological study, a statement

Upward Movement Can Start NOW!

SEVERAL happenings of the past few days tend to indicate that June can be made a turning point in the depression and that there can be an upward trend toward recovery—starting now.

In order to accomplish this, however, more people must snap out of the mental depression in which they have been engulfed and must vision the latent possibilities of this country to develop a sound prosperity greater than any heretofore experienced.

Like it or not, the federal government is entering on a vast spending-lending program intended to reduce unemployment and stimulate industry and business.

This alone will not be sufficient to bring any permanent benefits. Unless there is co-operation of industry, labor, business, agriculture, and all other elements entering into national life, expenditure of billions of dollars of taxpayers' money will be merely that much more wasteful extravagance.

Unless these pump-priming billions release other billions for use in production of commodities required to meet the demand that will result from greater purchasing power of the increased number of people who can then be employed, there is little to hope for in the immediate future.

It is difficult, under conditions such as have existed during the past several years, to minimize partisan thinking, especially in the midst of this year's violent campaigning, but it should not be overlooked that interests of the United States of America stand above the interests of any political party and that regard for the national welfare must take precedence over political preferences or antagonisms.

In a statement yesterday President Roosevelt expressed the opinion that "business—including farming—has not been as bad as a lot of people believed it to be."

Secretary of Commerce Roper believes "business statistics indicate a business and industrial upturn is likely this summer, or at least by fall."

"Announcement has been made," he said, "of large sums to be expended for plant expansion and improvement, under realization that where no wealth is created, none can be accumulated or distributed. . . . The merchant, the wholesaler and the manufacturer should prepare now to turn with the tide in order to avoid lost motion in the upward swing."

Among encouraging factors Secretary Roper listed reduction of excess inventories in the hands of retailers and wholesalers, and removal of legislative uncertainties by the adjournment of congress.

Another encouraging sign is the recent action of labor unions in attempting to rid their ranks of communists and alien agitators who have been largely responsible for sit-down strikes, property destruction and other contributions to discord and disorder which must be eliminated if there is to be fair approach toward solution of the large problem of providing employment for everyone who is mentally and physically able and willing to do some kind of necessary work.

Now is the time, if ever, when every shoulder should be at the wheel, in an effort to get the national machinery out of depression mire—and for everyone to start thinking "It can be done," instead of croaking, "The worst is yet to come."

South America Is Buying.

OUR foreign trade with Europe has been lagging lately, but our Latin-American trade is doing very well. And this in spite of the difficulties caused by political troubles in Mexico. The head of the foreign banking branch of a big midwestern bank reports that 60 per cent of the exports handled by his department last year went to South America, and of them 90 per cent were taken by two countries.

"There are 100,000,000 people down there," he says, "and I think our trade future lies there. Argentina and Brazil are our very good markets. Uruguay and Peru are next. Brazil has always co-operated with this country. Just a few weeks ago they abrogated their barter treaty with Germany."

"The market is competitive, but we excel and have first preference. I think we can look for a fairly normal trade development. The good will this nation has been generating there is not in vain."

Contrary to a general belief, he adds, such business is not risky. The credit losses on exports compare favorably with domestic losses, and in some cases the foreign record is better. This commerce is a far different thing from the foolish exportation of American capital, invested in doubtful Latin-American bonds, in which our people used to lose considerable money.

Mental Treatment Improves.

MENTAL ailments are said to be increasing faster than the population in this country. The great stress and strain of modern life and especially the economic insecurity of the depression years are leading factors in this development.

The situation is not hopeless. According to the head of a state hospital, the increase may not be so large as it appears. More people nowadays enter hospitals for mental treatment who would not have done so in the past. And there is reason to believe that more of them will be promptly and properly treated and will emerge fully recovered. New and effective methods have been discovered for handling some kinds of cases formerly baffling.

A specialist says children are not easily fooled by certain types of juvenile books—and there's also an impression that the stork theory has lost ground this week.

Scientific study indicates that dogs also have nervous breakdowns—so maybe it isn't safe to let the world go to them.

As Robert Quillen puts it: "Feeding a helpless man isn't kindness if you first tie his hands so he can't feed himself."

Some folks can remember when Cleveland's greatest ambition was to surpass Cincinnati in population figures.

America is a country of religious liberty, in which a man can stay away from any church he chooses.

Keeping Step

—By LESLIE EICHEL

EASY CREDIT fails to create demand," says a headline. It is true—as everyone having anything to do with finance knows.

In fact, there is easy credit because there is so little demand for credit—by large corporations. That is, corporations whose credit rating is the highest. But even the small corporation needs no extra credit today, unless its financial condition is bad.

The government is creating or forcing vast credit reserves in order to provide cheap credit. Now financing by large corporations to refund higher rate issues and to provide working capital is being obtained at extremely favorable rates. Standard Oil of New Jersey is preparing to issue $50,000,000 in 2 1/2 per cent debentures and $35,000,000 of serial notes. Only governments hitherto have been able to obtain money at such a low rate. Yet the Standard Oil issue will be oversubscribed, as have all other recent high-grade issues.

When two years ago Standard Oil of New Jersey and General Motors Acceptance Corporation set a low of issues at 3 per cent, the financial world believed that the bottom had been reached in low-interest bearing coupons. But now who can say whether they may not even be a coupon below 2 1/2 per cent.

The immense credit reserves, of course, help the government most of all. Its own issues, chiefly short-time paper, are bearing record low rates.

The U. S. treasury borrowed $100,000,000 last week at an all-time low rate of 16,000ths of one per cent, for 90-day bills.

NO DEMAND

The real barometer, however, is bank loans. Commercial loans are declining. A plethora of money will not create business. Business comes from trade. When trade advances, the demand for money, which is the medium of exchange, not the means of business, increases—and interest rates rise.

Banks, however, still have their own interest rates pegged above the level of supply and demand. Some persons say that this is as bad for business as pegged prices in other spheres.

Some readers of this column have complained that banks seem unsympathetic to the smaller man, that they depend too much on large corporations. One writer quotes as an example an alleged antagonism of his local bank to housing loans, "even with good security."

Some banks seem angered by "government interference" with interest rates. As their business declines, they become more determined than ever to keep their own interest rates pegged.

BANK CHARGES

In turn, bank customers are becoming angered by various service charges.

But, as a bank official explained to me, what is a bank to do? It cannot afford to lose money handling accounts. That eventually would mean an unsafe bank. There had been too much of that prior to the debacle of 1933. Banks have become, largely, service institutions. Any other business charges for services performed.

The public, however, is not used to that.

DIFFICULT TO EARN

Banks, more so than individuals, are finding it difficult to place money in required securities that will give a modicum of earnings.

Individuals take chances that a bank is not permitted to.

Insurance companies, too, are having a time of it making investments that will give a fair return. They are our largest investors, but always must pick prime securities. And prime securities, commercial and governments, are showing lower and lower returns.

Insurance companies, as the depression reaches bottom, are having larger borrowings on policies, too—and writing of new policies is showing a large drop—thus investments on their part may begin to decline. That might cause an increase in interest rates, on new issues eventually.

But bankers, economists and business men will tell you the same thing, trade is the solution. A plethora of credit and money will not turn the trick. What will bring trade? What will maintain trade, when it comes?

Europe As a Pattern.

It is becoming habitual these days for professional American malcontents to point to Europe as the shining example of how things may be better done. "They do not have this problem in Europe," they have solved this on the continent. "We have got accustomed to hearing such statements though many of us do not for a moment believe that even the malcontents would be willing for us to change places with any of the countries they tout. None of them seems to be getting his efforts to take up residence there.

It is refreshing after such a diet to hear former President Herbert Hoover say: "The only problem not acute in Europe is parking space." That, it seems to us, is a really significant remark.

It is fine to study what Europe is doing, but, before we apply the European doctrine, it is well also to remember that they were evolved for people who for the most part are born, live and die in the same houses, people who carry on the old trades from father to sons for generations, people who would think that the millennium had come if there could be two bicycles in every woodshed.—Milwaukee Journal.

Wheeler Peeves New Dealers

—By CHARLES P. STEWART

WASHINGTON—The New Dealer naturally hates Senator Burton K. Wheeler of Montana.

It did not hate him at first. That was natural, too. He always had been rather more than a liberal; a near-radical. The New Dealers began an investigation into the railroad problem when they came into office. As head of the senate interstate commerce committee, Wheeler automatically gravitated into the chairmanship of this inquiry. The new Dealers were glad to see him directing it. It was a monumental task, and his worst enemies do not deny that the Montana statesman made a wonderfully good job of it. It has not led to anything yet, but that is because the New Dealers, having grown to hate him, have failed to act on his undoubtedly constructive suggestions.

The New Deal turned against him when he declared himself in opposition to President Roosevelt's federal supreme court reorganization plan. He not only opposed it. He developed into its opposite. He developed into the anti-administration leader.

AS STEWART SEES IT
Well, after all, this administration has not been such a wonder in that lay the unforgiveness of his offense. He got away with it.

Now, a liberal can be a liberal and yet object to a so-called liberal administration's attempt to concentrate executive power in its own hands at the expense of the legislative and judicial branches of the government.

Senator Wheeler has been moderately successful at blocking executive efforts in this direction.

In fact, he has been the anti-administration leader.

restoring good times—and keeping them restored.

Of course it furiously resents Wheeler's criticisms.

It refers to the Montana solon as a renegade liberal.

He HAS had some conservative support. His radicalism has been a bit moderate; even for his moderation conservatism has been a trifle thankful.

Nevertheless, conservatism does not essentially like Wheeler.

I have heard him say that he wished Russian communism well—not as an ideal system but as an improvement on czarism. Such a remark—to come from a conservative! Why, the Montanan might be questioned by the Dies investigators into anti-American activities!

CANDIDATE?

Wheeler is beginning to be talked about as a presidential possibility in 1940.

He has been a vice presidential candidate already.

It goes almost without saying that the conservatives do not want him presidentially.

But neither does the New Deal.

His past record is too awfully radical for the conservatives; now it is too conservative for the New Deal.

However—as a compromise?

That is what both sides are afraid of, especially the New Dealers, who hate him worst just now, since he shows so much independence.

INFLUENCED—BY WHAT?

Conservative comment is somewhat charitable. It wants all it can get.

New Deal comment is venomous. Its version is that Wheeler has sold out to Anaconda Copper, et al. Phooey! Burton K. defied Anaconda Copper when he was a petty politician. Is it likely he would worry about it now, as a national presidential possibility?

They also assert that he has a lot of administrative "paw" in his home state.

Is THAT likely, considering that the administration is doing its utmost to beat him for re-election? Or, possibly, for the presidency? I would not think he would be a presidential nominee, but he might be.

people wake suddenly with a start, others gradually, and twins are likely to have the same habits.

To read these reports is quite uncanny and makes one feel rather fatalistic.

Other recent studies in twins have concerned the appearance of allergy in twins. It is well known that allergy, such as hay fever and similar conditions, are hereditary. Hay fever occurs in from 7 to 10 per cent of the population. In hay fever families the percentage may be as high as 50 per cent but in twins this percentage rises. If one twin has hay fever, the other twin will have it in from 80 to 100 per cent of cases. This also is true of migraine or sick headache.

Many twins who have asthma due to food, they are both allergic to the same food.

GOD BLESS YOU TODAY:

There is a camp for twins on the Baltic coast, and here 26 pairs of female twins, ranging from 6 to 14 years were observed. The doctors who made the study distinguished two kinds of sleep—cortical sleep and axial sleep. In cortical sleep the consciousness is completely lost and dreams are absent. But the muscles of the body perform regular movements of turning over and getting into different positions. In axial sleep the muscles are quiet but the mind is only partially unconscious, resulting in moments of wakefulness and semi-wakefulness and in dreams. Everybody must have experienced both of these. In individuals, however, one type or the other is liable to predominate.

In children sleep-walking, gnashing the teeth and bed-wetting are evidence of predominant cerebral sleep.

Movements are Hereditary.

The study of the sleep of twins, making these observations, is astonishingly confirmatory of the fact that most of our habits and movements are hereditary and beyond our control. Twins tend to go to sleep within the same period of time and to wake up almost at the same moment, even though they do not sleep in the same bed or even in the same room. They exhibit the same habits during sleep. Both of them tend to be long to the cerebral or the axial type of sleepers; both of them tend to be teeth-grashers, somnambulists or bed-wetters. Some

Study Being Made of Twins, Hereditary Traits Noted

By LOGAN GLENDENING, M. D.

I have always been very much interested in twins. They present a perfect natural biological experiment. They both start out with the same heredity and at the same moment, and the amount of influence which heredity has on our lives can easily be measured by studying them.

This point of view appears to impress biologists a great deal during the present century and studies of twins are increasing. I find from Germany the report on a research on the sleeping habits of twins.

Is it possible to observe hereditary traits manifested whole consciousness is more or less obliterated by sleep? A study of this problem might shed light on certain specially conditioned functions of the mind manifested during consciousness.

There is a camp for twins on the Baltic coast, and here 26 pairs of female twins, ranging from 6 to 14 years were observed. Are You Properly Adjusted For Smooth Performance?

—By ELSIE ROBINSON

NEEDED—in every school in America—COURSES IN PERSONALITY ADJUSTMENT. Lessons in human relationship. Practical instruction, from kindergarten through Hi, in the simple essentials of civilized behavior.

Under our present system, a youngster is taught practically everything on earth save the one essential requisite for a happy life—HOW TO GET ALONG WITH OTHER PEOPLE.

Each year sees new novelties added to the curriculum . . . tap dancing, flower arrangement, window trimming, endless devices for enriching one's personal store of information and catching the elusive penny.

But where will you find a class on that most indispensable of all human arts—HOW AND WHEN TO KEEP YOUR MOUTH SHUT? Yet it's a safe bet that more careers have been crippled by ignorance on this subject than by all the other handicaps put together.

Think of the various odd eggs whom you know—social, domestic and industrial. The people whom everyone dodges at a party or avoids in the office. What's wrong with them? They're smart enough; capable, too. Decent, hard-working, kind-hearted folk, for the most part—desperately eager for popularity and success. Yet they never quite click. Why?

BECAUSE THEY'RE SOCIAL MISFITS. THEY HAVE NEVER BEEN ADJUSTED TO THE REST OF THE HUMAN RACE. AND, AS A RESULT, THEY ARE AS OUT OF PLACE IN NORMAL HUMAN GROUPS AS A FRESHLY CAPTURED ORANG-OUTANG.

There's Sam, the Boaster . . . and Gertie, the Gloom . . . Jimmy, the wise-cracker . . . and Tillie, with the Non-Stop Tongue. Also Bert, who uses the slightest statement as grounds for a seven-year debate . . . or Fred, the Know-It-All . . . Parlor Panics, every one of them . . . just about as popular as a dose of HIVES.

AND EACH ONE OF THEM AN ARRANGEMENT OF OUR EDUCATIONAL SYSTEM. For few, if any of them, would have developed their irritating mannerisms if they had received proper training in their youth.

"Defence Mechanisms"—that's what psychiatrists call such mannerisms. Psychological cover-ups and compensations for past hurts and humiliations.

Pitiful? Yes? But also powerful pest—utterly unnecessary. No one HAS to develop an unpopular "defence Mechanism."

And no one who is correctly informed and trained WILL develop one. We all have hurts and humiliations. But we all can and should learn how to manage them . . . and how to adjust ourselves harmoniously in spite of them.

And such instruction should be LESSON NO. 1 in every human life. No education is worthy of the name unless it has taught—and tested—the student's graciousness, self-control, good sportsmanship and social co-operation.

It is not enough to merely observe and give marks on such attributes . . . they should be taught as definitely as Math or English Lit.

HOW WE ACT is infinitely more important to the other fellow than WHAT WE KNOW. You may be a walking encyclopedia, an animated joke book or a record-breaker in your particular line—but if you aren't also a gracious, tactful, self-controlled and comfortable human companion, no one wants you around.

out of Cynthia's coat . . . And who is Cynthia anyway? She's crazy about me. She's my Persian cat, and she's 11 years old . . . Had her ever since she could say meow. She's a great girl, although the bluejeans are making it tough for her. They scare the dickens out of her every time she goes out into the yard.

They must think she's after the baby bluejeans . . . Well Cynthia isn't thinking about bluejean meat. She likes kidney and fish. . . . I suppose she'd look sort of funny to you, if you ever saw her. . . . She used to have a tail as long as a setter's . . . But not long ago the wind blew the door shut on it. . . . And pinched it off. . . . It's hanging on my tie-rack now, dangling with my neckties.

Finished reading "The Yearling" and then took my medicine. Took it like a little man, too. If you want a book that is so "readable" it hurts, I offer you "The Yearling." . . . You can smell the warm spring rains washing things clean.

RAN off some motion pictures of a hunting trip we went on last fall. First time I'd seen them. They were in color and very good, although what impressed were the red hunting shirts, there being little game. It seemed strange seeing one's self kicking through snow with the temperature hovering around 86 outside.

Which reminds me my own temperature is at normal. My appetite is subnormal. But do not let this condition alarm you, for sub-normal with me means that I am merely ravenous.

Well, the honeymoon is almost over . . . Only a couple more days, the doctor says. . . . That means back to Siberia, back to the salt mines. . . . But it's been fun. . . . Boy, this being ill certainly is a racket. Wonder why I never thought of it before. (Miss Jones, remind me to try this again some time.) People being good to you? . . . People fussing over you? . . . Fixing you fried chicken? . . . And wearing you out with "Can't I get some of this for you?" . . . Or wouldn't you like to have some of that?"

Sugar, I don't want to seem unappreciative, but I can't stand much more of this . . . They're just naturally killing me with kindness.

Questioned as to rules for the guidance of bosses, John H. Goss, in charge of labor relations for the Scovill company, lays down three principles of conduct:

BAG LIMIT ON RABBITS CUT IN NEW GAME LAW

Conservation Council Trims Daily Total to 4, Moves Up Bass Season.

Hunters in the Richland county area will be permitted to bag only four rabbits in a day instead of five next fall, but fishermen who go to Lake Erie for bass can start two weeks earlier this year, the Ohio Conservation council ruled today.

Changes in the state game laws, announced following a session of the council at Columbus, include a five-day extension of the open season on ring-neck pheasants and permission to shoot ruffed grouse in certain sections of the state. It will be the first time in 40 years that Ohio nimrods have had the opportunity to take grouse legally.

The Lake Erie season on bass was moved up from July 15 to July 1.

Season Opens Nov. 15.

As in the past few years the opening of the hunting season will commence at noon, Nov. 15. The pheasant season and the season on Hungarian partridge will extend until Nov. 30, inclusive.

A new regulation was adopted that only two cock pheasants and four Hungarian partridges may be in a hunter's possession at any one time. Previously, council members said, hunters found with more than two birds in their possession claimed two were taken the day before.

Ruffed grouse may be taken within certain restricted sections this season, the first time in 40 years Ohio hunters have had the opportunity to legally take this bird.

2 SETTLEMENTS OK'D BY COURT

Parents Authorized to Accept Damages For Children.

Parents of two Mansfield minors had received probate court authorization today to accept damages for injuries to their children in automobile accidents.

In a claim against Robert W. Lyon of Mansfield, Mr. and Mrs. Harold H. Taylor were instructed to accept $40 for injuries suffered by their daughter, Julia Ann Taylor, near Gallion last April 28. Costs amounting to $10.50 were assessed against Lyon.

The court authorized Mr. and Mrs. Cloyd Purdy to settle for $26 for injuries received by their son, James, in a recent mishap. The claim will be paid by Fred Sturgeon.

There were no suits filed in either case.

PRODUCTION NOTES: Merle Oberon is brushing up her American-English speech for her role in "The Cowboy and The Lady."

Can this be the old stage play of Maxine Elliott and William Faversham which has been made into a movie several times? Gary Cooper will play the cowboy. Although he leaves his boyish roles behind him forever, Harold Lloyd will still retain that bewildered innocence and unsophistication in "Professor Beware" and his climax follows the line he made famous—a mad race for something or other. This time it is to rescue the girl of his heart from her father's yacht. . . . Poor Ray Milland, a really good actor with personality, is stuck with another of those South Sea Island roles with Dorothy Lamour in "Tropic Holiday."

Today's Headlines.

The most dramatic stories in today's newspapers are those that come out of Spain, and out of them John Howard Lawson, screen writer, has woven a gripping tale of a peasant boy who refuses to follow his people who move like dumb cattle over their own lands. An entire sector, on the verge of starvation, awaits the coming of a food ship just entering the harbor which is blockaded by the enemy. And a submarine submerges to send a torpedo to sink it, as the starved civilians watch its progress. This is one of the dramatic climaxes of "Blockade," a Walter Wanger production which opens at the Ohio today, with Henry Fonda and Madeline Carroll, Leo Carrillo and John Halliday.

Continues Through Saturday.

Two days are left after today in which Mansfield people may see "The Birth of a Baby," the controversial film which several states have banned but which passed the Ohio board of censors practically untouched. The film

13 NO JINX FOR SCHOOLS, MOST CITY PUPILS IN THAT AGE GROUP

The number 13 may be the proverbial jinx, but there will be more pupils 13 years old in Mansfield schools next fall than in any other age group, enumeration figures compiled by Supt. W. L. Miller showed today.

The city's public and parochial schools will have a total enrollment of 7,324, of which 728 pupils will be 13 years old. The prospective enrollment is an increase of six pupils over last year's enumeration.

Boys will outnumber girls, 3,750 to 3,574, and there will be 385 first-graders, according to the figures compiled from reports submitted by parents of prospective pupils.

Based on age, there would be 514 seniors in the city's two high schools, but that number, it was pointed out, represents only pupils 18 years old who would normally be completing school.

Some of them will quit school before they graduate while others of that age may be a grade or more lower because of failure during their school careers, school officials said.

The figures indicate John Simpson will have an enrollment of 1,200 pupils to top the list in the city. Senior high school would be second with 1,195 pupils. The Woodland school, newest of the city's buildings, will have the smallest enrollment, or 113.

St. Peter's parochial school will have 817 pupils, the enumeration indicates.

Book of the Week

"BRIGHTON ROCK," by Graham Greene: (Viking: $2.50).

As is obvious from the price, "Brighton Rock" is no "murder mystery." It costs 50 cents more than a murder mystery.

Nevertheless, "Brighton Rock" has been filled with murder by its creator, Graham Greene. It is garished with mystery, although not the kind of mystery that supports the Crime Club and kindred ventures. But chiefly the novel is a psychological study, a statement made rather unwillingly, because as it was being written we could hear Mr. Greene's prospective audience running out the back door. And who can blame them, considering the stuff the book trade usually sells under that designation?

Make no mistake — "Brighton Rock" is genuine. It concerns a brief period in the noisome career of the most vicious 17-year-old in modern fiction. Admittedly, it is a little difficult to agree with Mr. Greene that The Boy could boss a tough mob at his tender age and considering his frail physique. You simply have to take that on trust, and go on from there. If you do, you'll never turn back until you reach the gory end.

You'll meet too many remarkable creatures, for one thing. Ida is the most astounding detective imaginable. Phil is the most incredible sort of lecher. Colleoni is a delicious specimen of the successful gangster. Drewitt could hardly have been better done if you yourself had set out to draw the perfect shyster lawyer. Rose is an amazing specimen of gutter-snipe, purified, paradoxically, by contact with viciousness. And so on, almost indefinitely.

There is a genuine plot in "Brighton Rock." The actors, as mentioned before, are first rate. The background is real; the sense of dread and the ache of suspense which take hold on the first page are with the reader to the end. And there is something more—Mr.

Greene can write the sharpest-edged, most bitter prose it has been our fortune to see in months. He doesn't put a smock on to keep the dirt off his Sunday clothes either, as do our hairy-chested Hemingways. . . . —By J. S.

PAYS MOST TAX

California Leads States in Gas Levy Payments.

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Figures printed in the Service Station News show that Californians have paid more gasoline tax than any other state in the union, the total since a tax was imposed in 1923 being $527,180,000.

Pennsylvania, which instituted its tax in 1921, has paid the second highest, $487,379,000, while New York—with a tax dating from 1929—is third with $473,172,000.

$4,500 Offered In Premium Book for Richland Fair

PRIZE LISTS READY FOR '38 COMPETITION

2,000 Books to Be Sent Out to Farm Organizations to Distribute Among Farmers.

The first batch of more than 2,000 county fair premium books were placed in the hands of Richland county 4-H clubs and farm organizations today for distribution among members and others interested in farm displays at the fair.

Walter W. Shafer, fair board secretary, estimated that cash premiums offered for exhibits in livestock, farm produce, school work, club work and grange exhibits will total nearly $4,500.

Premiums in some instances have been stepped up but in most cases, they are the same as in previous years, the secretary said.

Fair Comes Early. Premium books are being sent out early this year owing to the early fair dates, July 27, 28 and 29. Richland county will have the first county fair in Ohio.

Premiums totaling $430 are offered in the draft horse division. There are three classes, grade draft horses, Belgians and Percherons. E. C. Shafer and L. Rinehart are superintendents in charge.

In the cattle division, premiums total $130. Awards are set up for 18 different entries in two classes, bulls and cows. J. J. Cline and W. E. Smith are superintendents.

Sheep exhibitors will compete for $42 in premiums set up for entries of Merino B. Delaine Merino C. Hampshire Downs. Shropshire Downs, Cotsworld and Southdowns. Superintendents of this division are John Koehseier and Howard Johnson.

For swine exhibits, the premiums offered total $84. Premiums will be awarded in the following breeds, Poland China, Chester White, Durocs and Spotted Poland China. G. M. Garnhart and H. Zody are in charge.

Offer Numerous Exhibits. Scores of premiums are offered for poultry exhibits. Chickens, ducks, geese and other poultry are eligible in this department. Entry blanks can be obtained by contacting Kenneth Schilling, of Shelby, superintendent.

Richland county school exhibits for which numerous additional premiums have been posted, include exhibits in art work, manuscripts, maps, nature study, penmanship. Separate premiums are offered for high school exhibits.

Junior fair premiums are offered in exhibits of sheep, lambs, wool, potatoes, hogs, cows, heifers, poultry, turkeys, oats, wheat and vegetables.

Junior fair officers are: Wilson Taylor, Shiloh, president; Margaret Purdy, Mansfield R. D. 1, vice president; Leo Berry, Lucas, secretary; and Stanley Huston, Shiloh, treasurer.

Usual 4-H Entries. Richland county 4-H clubs will be offered the usual premiums for a variety of project work. George B. Ganyard, county agricultural extension agent, is in charge of the club's exhibits.

A total of $200 in prizes has been set up for the horse pulling contests. Four prizes will be awarded in lightweight and heavy-weight divisions. Clarence Tugend, C. S. Henry and L. Rinehart are in charge of the contest.

Grange exhibits will compete for a total of $300 in premiums. Harry E. Miller is in charge. A total of $80 is offered in premiums for the flower show, and $60 is offered in quilt, bed spread, and other household fabric premiums.

LOUIS RIESTER DIES AT GALION

Resident of City 50 Years Stricken at Home; Rites to Be Held Saturday.

GALION—Louis Riestler, 78, died Wednesday at 4 p. m. at his home, 217 East Walnut street, here. He had been bedfast since last Friday, complications causing his death.

He was born on a farm east of Crestline, June 27, 1860, the son of Michael and Lavina (Fox) Riestler. His marriage, May 8, 1888, was to Amelia Winters, who survives.

He had lived in Galion for 50 years and was a retired vault salesman. He was a member of St. Joseph's Catholic church and of the Catholic Knights of Ohio.

His widow, nieces and nephews, are the only survivors. Three brothers and a sister preceded him in death.

Friends may call at the Whittier mortuary. Funeral services will be held Saturday at 9 a. m. at St. Joseph's Catholic church. Burial will be made in Mt. Calvary cemetery here.

KNOX SPEECH BEFORE NEWSMEN DRAWS RETORT FROM GOVERNOR

(By Associated Press) WHITE SULPHUR SPRINGS, W. VA.—The Democratic governor of West Virginia, Homer A. Holt, raised the question of infringed hospitality today because of a political speech before the non-metropolitan editors of the nation by Publisher Frank Knox of Chicago.

Knox, Republican vice presidential nominee in 1936, charged the federal administration had set up a "gigantic propaganda machine" to "fasten the blame for the depression on business," and to use for "personal greed and power."

Holt rose from the rear of a banquet hall where members of the National Editorial association had gathered after Knox's broadcast address last night and declared:

"I must apologize for having participated in a small way in bringing here a 'non-political' speaker who would castigate all endeavors of an administration challenged by more gigantic problems than any other in the country's history."

The governor added that he wanted to "accord Colonel Knox the greatest freedom of speech... but on the other hand I feel the guest should have a little consideration for the host."

Knox told newsmen: "My belief is that if there is any place a newspaperman should feel free to express himself... it would be at a meeting of other newspapermen."

W. W. Loomis, of LaGrange, Ill., retiring president of the association, thanked the governor for his remarks but repeated his statement at the opening of the convention that "the hope of democracy is the freedom to express all the news and all the views."

TALKS TO CLUB

Ashbrook Speaks to Kiwanis on "Our Presidents." Congressman William A. Ashbrook, Johnstown, spoke to members of the Kiwanis club and their guests at the club's weekly luncheon meeting at the Mansfield-Leland hotel today.

Ashbrook's subject was "Our Presidents." The talk was non-political, in accordance with the rules of the club. Common Pleas Judge C. H. Huston was chairman of the meeting.

WORKMAN HURT

GALION—Frank DeNise, 23, of north of Galion, had several teeth broken Tuesday afternoon when he was hit by a skid while working on the Ohio Fuel Gas company line seven miles west of Harpersburg. He was pushing the skid under the line when the pipe broke and fell on the end of the skid. The skid flew up and hit DeNise under the jaw. He was treated by a physician at Upper Sandusky. X-rays of the injury were taken Wednesday afternoon at Emergency hospital, Crestline.

WEDDING SET

BUYRUS—The approaching marriage, July 10, of Miss Violet Naufzinger, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. J. Naufzinger, 402 Irving street, and Earl Shutt, son of Mr. Daisy Shutt, 401 Shocker street, was announced at a party given by the bride-elect's mother at the Naufzinger home Tuesday evening.

PLAN SERVICES

BUYRUS—St. John's day services will be combined with the annual Memorial service, Sunday morning in the Masonic temple when Rev. R. Frank Mitchell of First Presbyterian church, will be the speaker. The memorial services will be in charge of the Eastern Star chapter.

The service will begin with a breakfast at 6 o'clock.

SCHOOL PROJECT APPROVED

GALION—A notice to Galion, Wednesday, advised that President Roosevelt had approved a 45 per cent grant of $4,182 on the $98,182 WPA project for a new East school building in Galion. It now will be necessary for the board of education to present a levy to the taxpayers of Galion for the remaining $54,000. The project will probably be completed at the board meeting of July 5.

JACKSON FLAYS MOVE TO OUST CIO ATTORNEY

Calls Disbarment Proceeding Against Lamb 'Fierce and Vindicative' Proposal.

(By Associated Press) WASHINGTON—In a letter made public today by the National Lawyers guild, Solicitor General Robert H. Jackson termed disbarment proceedings against Attorney Edward Lamb of Toledo, O., a "fierce and vindictive proposal" invoked because Lamb "is a labor lawyer."

The disbarment action is to be heard at Portsmouth, O., June 30. The Scioto County Bar instituted the proceedings as a result of Lamb's conduct in litigation between the United Shoe Workers of America (CIO), which he represented, and the Williams Manufacturing Co.

Letters Exchanged. William R. Daley of Cleveland wrote Jackson May 13 and questioned the latter's connection as an individual with a Lamb defense committee. Daley's letter, and Jackson's reply, dated June 7, were made public simultaneously.

Daley said the labor case quoted Lamb as saying: "I assure the Williams Manufacturing Co. that it will not make another shoe until it signs a contract with the United Shoe Workers of America, regardless of the disposition of this case."

"By your action," Daley wrote Jackson, "you have contributed your full share to the efforts of those who desire it is to break down our judicial system with the resulting anarchy which would naturally follow."

Jackson replied: "I, with the others, will leave no stone unturned to see that this effort does not succeed and to focus public opinion on the effort if it is persisted in."

"I know of no adequate explanation of this fierce and vindictive proposal except that Lamb is a labor lawyer. That offensive and habitual activity on behalf of labor is the cause of his prosecution is affirmed by examination of the petition for disbarment with its allusion to 'class hatreds'..."

MEET AT GALION

Three Kiwanis Organizations to Hold Joint Meeting. GALION—Mt. Gilead and Crestline Kiwanis clubs will join the Galion Kiwanis club for All-Kiwanis night to be held Monday evening at the Galion Country club. The three groups will join 2,000 other clubs in the United States and Canada meeting in conjunction with the meeting of delegates to the annual convention in San Francisco.

Three Galion Kiwanians are attending the national convention: Ohio District Governor Rev. Philip E. Auer, and delegates, J. E. Garverick and Glenn Stevens.

STRUCK BY AUTO

GALION—Mrs. Nettie Faust of 527 South Pierce street, was treated in the office of a local physician Wednesday afternoon after she stepped in the path of an automobile driven by Mrs. Missouri Boyer of 457 South Pierce street.

TWIRL BATONS

CRESTLINE—An interesting display of the art of drum majors was given in the form of a floor show Wednesday evening at Kelly park in connection with the Alumni band concert and social sponsored by the park board.

Glendene Hoffman, former high school drum major, and now holding the same position with the Alumni band, drilled the boys and arranged the show in which eight boys ranging in age from 7 to 19 years participated.

HIKER BACK

Ashlander, 77, Tells About 265-Mile Trek to N. Y.

ASHLAND—Ard Blackford, Ashland's first Boy Scout master and an enthusiast of hiking, was back home today, just returned from his participation in the McFadden "health hike" which required 13 days to complete and covered a distance of 265 miles.

Finishing among the leaders, Blackford, who is 77, and who has been taking his Sunday hikes from five to 25 miles, was in fine shape at the finish in Danville, N. Y., and said that the only trouble he had was from a nail in a newly repaired shoe.

Otherwise, from the time he started at Crestline, he kept up the gruelling pace, and at the end of the daily trips, instead of resting like most other contestants, he would take side excursions on foot. He said himself that after each day's trip, he walked an additional distance just for fun.

FINISH SEWER

Bucyrus WPA Workers Complete Street Project. BUCYRUS—Completion of the South Sandusky avenue and Charles street sewer, a WPA project started April 25, was announced today by Service Director C. I. McNeal.

The project added an 18 inch sewer three feet below the level of the former sewer. The new sewer is expected to take care of storm waters which caused considerable damage in the downtown section during heavy rains during the past year.

Beginning July 1 an extensive street repair program will be started, which will include resurfacing on Southern avenue from Marion road to Rogers street and Clark street from Martin to Rensselaer street.

PWA FREES MORE PROJECT FUNDS

279 Additional Jobs Approved at Cost of $61,752,437. WASHINGTON—(AP)—The Public Works administration today pressed its recovery drive another step forward with announcement of 279 additional approved projects carrying a total construction value of $61,752,437.

It was the third list of projects released by PWA since President Roosevelt signed the $3,753,000,000 Recovery bill and brought the total worth of approved projects to $210,546,332. Of this sum the government's contribution is $107,406,000 for a total of $89 projects.

Today's grants totalled $28,009,551 with loans of $1,582,500.

COURT UPHOLDS $3,000 DAMAGE SUIT VERDICT

Appeals Judges Approve Trial in Lower Court of Ashland Auto Accident Action.

ASHLAND—Judgment of $3,000 in favor of the plaintiff was returned by the fifth district court of appeals sitting at Newark, in the action of Newton L. Crist against William K. Trease.

The judgment is the second one which has been given in favor of the plaintiff. In the first hearing held in Ashland, in which the plaintiff sought damages of $7,000 for being struck by an automobile driven by the defendant in 1933, the petit jury allotted $500 in his favor.

The action was appealed, and the appeal was granted on the basis of error in the presiding judge's charge, and after the action had been remanded to the lower court for a second hearing, an entirely different jury awarded the plaintiff $3,000.

The verdict was again appealed, and the judgment of the lower court affirmed by the three judges of the district court of appeals.

CRAWFORD COURT NOTES

BUCYRUS—Common Pleas court: Cognovit judgment rendered for $3,370.67 in favor of William C. Marquart against Roy E. Lohr.

Jerry White against Metropolitan Insurance company, motion of the defendant to require the plaintiff to make his petition more definite sustained.

Marion Supply company against Christ F. Mike and others, demurrers of defendants overruled.

W. J. Casler against D. D. Miller, suit filed asking judgment of $250 charging breach of contract. The plaintiff sets forth in his petition that he entered into a contract with the defendant for moving a building. After signing the contract Miller hired another mover to move the building, the petition states.

Lester Day against Lillian Day, divorce decree granted to the plaintiff on grounds of wilful absence.

ASHLAND—Johnson Porter, of New London, was fined $10 and costs after pleading guilty to charges of reckless driving on being arraigned in the court of J. H. Armstrong here. Porter was arrested by State Patrolman S. B. Radcliffe.

A Farmer's Diary

By Calvin A. Byers

SOME sage has said that children are like the ones who tend them. I wonder if it is true. The contrast between two worthy gardens that I know intrigues me.

The first belongs to a dear old lady of the "plain" folks. In her black bonnet, she is to be seen, early and late, working in the plot behind her farm home. Her garden is precise, and straight and clean of weeds. The carefully powdered earth around each stocky tomato plant, the prim rows of fringed topped carrot, the bluish green of the lines of early cabbage... but above all the sweet, wholesome face of the kind, generous lady whose motherly figure reminds me of the great Whistler painting.

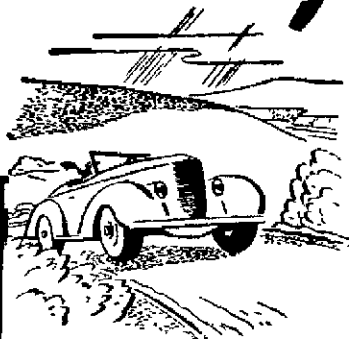

The other garden is ten times as big. "As big as all outdoors." Its rows of peas and beans and sweetcorn and onions are long and none too straight.

"THERE'S A MARVELOUS HILL-COUNTRY right here in OHIO!"

OLD MAN'S CAVE in the rugged beauty of the Hocking State Parks near Logan, Ohio.

● "Rolling hills! . . . Sweeping hills! . . . reaching high to the heavens... that's not Switzerland, nor the Pyrenees, nor the Scottish Highlands, but eastern and southern Ohio! . . . just a few hours drive from your own home.

"And take a word from one who has seen views from all sizes and shapes of hills and mountains. There certainly are some of the finest down in those south central Ohio hills.

"Why as far as the eye can see there are green, waving fields . . . here and there white painted farmhouses . . . and nestling under the kindly protection of stalwart hills are peaceful villages and thriving towns.

"Drive anywhere along the mighty Ohio where it forms the southeastern boundary and you will find yourself in the picturesque Appalachian hills of Ohio. North of Woodsfield, is a township that is actually named Switzerland, and once you see these rolling highlands you will know the term is apt indeed.

"To the north, near New Philadelphia, you will find Schoenbrunn, where some of the first white settlers set foot, and where some of the original log cabins and houses have been restored. The road from there to Coshocton takes you over some of the grandest hill country in the state. Near Newcomerstown is the Old Stone Fort, and on to the west, at Gambier, you'll find old Kenyon College in its perfect setting.

"Roll on down to Newark and you'll see the storied Indian mounds; then see ancient Flint Ridge, near Gratiot, the working place of men of bygone ages. Visit Zanesville, where the old royalty of France once was received. And by all means don't miss the country east of Zanesville; the roads leading into Cambridge are masterpieces of nature's plan.

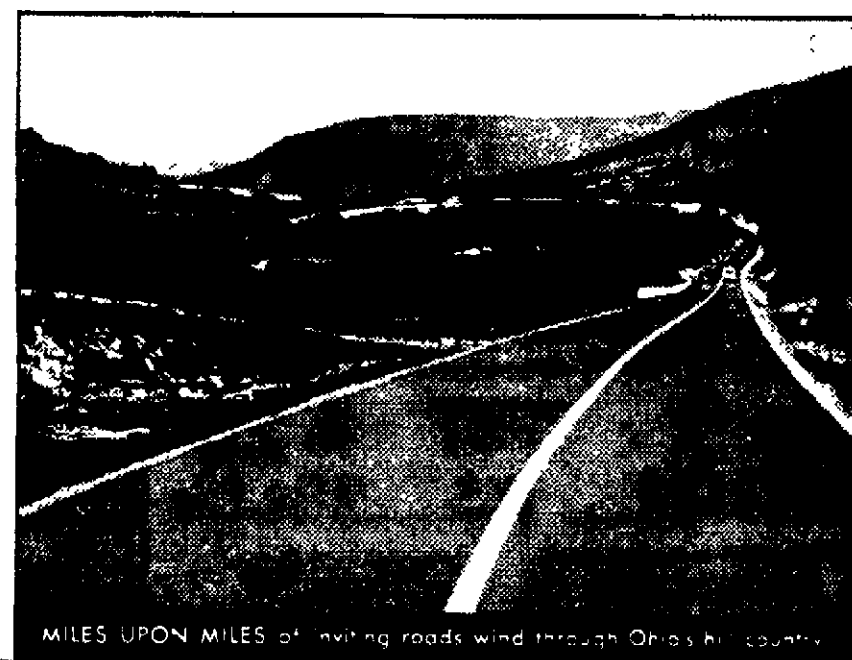

"Then swing south to the valley of the Muskingum to McConnelsville and head to the southwest for Glouster. Visit the mighty Hocking State Parks, where the wild rock-bound gorges form one of Ohio's most unique beauty spots. And at Chillicothe, you will see the hills immortalized on Ohio's official state seal.

"Oh, you'll see dozens of places along the roads that you'll want to stop and visit, just as I did. So don't hold back for fear it's rough traveling. It's not—the roads are great. And best of all—you don't need to travel long distances. Many places are within a few hours drive from your own home. So go adventuring yourself; see Ohio's own 'Switzerland.'"

HEART ON HER SLEEVE

CHAPTER II.

"No explanations are necessary," Mrs. Loomis sniffed hatefully. "I'm no fool! Pack your things and leave them here until you've paid me the three weeks' room rent you owe me. And take your girl friend and find another place to stay!"

Jed's face whitened slowly. "Very well," he said quietly. "Will you let me take my banjo?"

"I suppose so," Mrs. Loomis sniffed again. "It's your living. I'll never get my money if you don't have it."

She went out and banged the door until the chandelier shook. Quick tears came to Moleen's eyes.

"Oh, Jed, I've gotten you into trouble! And you're broke too. I'm so sorry."

Jed crossed and tilted her chin with his hand. "Don't worry about me. But I could kick myself for being so stupid as to let this happen to a kid like you."

She smiled through her tears. "As if it matters! I'm nobody. She'll never see me again."

Moleen helped him pack his few belongings. Out on the street Jed stood looking at her uncertainly, tillie under his arm.

"Now where are you going, Moleen?"

"To my uncle's," she lied bravely.

"Listen," Jed looked worried. "Are you doing anything on the Fourth of July?"

Moleen shook her head, smiling faintly.

"I've an engagement to play at Coney Island in the afternoon. I'm going to make twenty-five dollars. Will you have dinner with me and we'll celebrate?"

"Oh, yes!" Moleen said happily. "Where shall I call for you?"

Moleen thought quickly. "Meet me right up the street here, in our doorway."

"It's a date," Jed held out his hand. "Eight o'clock, July Fourth. So long, Moleen. I believe you'll bring me luck!"

As they parted, neither had the faintest idea where he or she was going. Around the corner Moleen stopped uncertainly, feeling completely lost.

By noon, all signs of the heavy storm of the night before were gone. New York City was an inferno of blistering sun, with not a breath of air stirring. All that night and the next day the thermometer mounted higher and higher.

Mignon Laine, sweltering in a penthouse because something had gone wrong with the air-cooling system, decided to open up the house in Great Neck the next day. Somehow, it always seemed lonelier to her on the island, she couldn't quite understand why, but because her father had been away on frequent trips she had remained in town.

Bimbo, her prize collie, lay at her feet with his tongue protruding from the heat.

"Come, Bimbo," she got up and forced herself into activity. "We'll go for a ride in Central Park. Maybe there'll be a breath of air there."

The dog got up and followed at her heels. Telephoning for her car, she ran a puff over her face and made up her lips. Then faced herself in the long mirror without enthusiasm.

What she saw was a small girl with yellow hair around a plain lifeless face. The only outstanding features were the brown eyes that contrasted with her blond hair and gave personality to her expression. Otherwise, except for her impeccable taste in clothes, no one would have noticed her in a crowd.

Mignon Laine was unhappy. Morbidly certain that no one liked her for herself, her inferiority complex colored her entire life. Deeply maternal and affectionate, her lonely childhood, after her mother divorced her father and went to live in Paris, had darkened her young girlhood.

At twenty-four, Mignon had few friends, even though she had wealth and was the daughter of the district attorney of New York. There were those who sought her out, and would have liked to know her. But feeling it was because she was Mignon Laine, and not because she could be liked for herself, Mignon's complex had driven women friends away.

Then too, the emptiness of a debutante's life bored her so much that she would not take the trouble to make an effort to get into the social swim. There was nothing money could buy that did not lie within Mignon Laine's grasp. But with it all, the only thing that could make her happy was not to be purchased with dollars and cents; some one to love for herself.

In every attractive man she met she saw the possibility of her secret dreams coming true. A husband and a family of her own.

There was no one in the world in whom she could confide her innermost thoughts. So she kept them to herself.

Many of her friends had been divorced and remarried before they were her age. But in spite of this, and the fact that her mother had been divorced and remarried three times since she left her father, Mignon believed in love and marriage.

Of all the men she knew, Sunny Tucker was the only one who paid her any romantic attention. Gay, light-hearted Sunny who, finding himself without the family fortune one fine day, had quickly organized a swing band and set forth to earn his living.

Mignon was thinking of Sunny as she drove through the park with Bimbo beside her. Would he ask her to marry him? If he did, should she accept because she might not have another opportunity? There was the suspicion, back in her mind, that even Sunny liked her for her father's fortune, made as a corporation lawyer.

He would be lots of fun, and always kind. But that would not be real happiness. Her love must be a knight in shining armor, who did not know who she was! Mignon smiled to herself at her romanticism, and felt it was perhaps a little adolescent. Nevertheless, that was the sort of romance she wanted, and the only thing that would satisfy the emptiness in her lonely heart.

Twilight was deepening into dusk as Mignon drove through the park. It seemed that thousands of people lay on the hot dry grass trying to escape from the inferno of the city sidewalks.

Mignon drove slowly for awhile, watching the many children who played under the trees, and feeling sorry that they were not all at the shore. Then in a lonely stretch of park she increased her speed.

She saw the girl that staggered from a pathway directly in front of her car, but not in time to stop. Mignon slammed on the brakes. But too late.

More frightened than she had ever been in her life, she jumped out of her car and around to bend over the girl she had struck. Mignon, without realizing what she was doing, picked the stranger up with a strength born of her fear and lay her on the back seat of the car. Then jumping in, she raced for home.

The doorman was alarmed by the look on her face.

"Here," Mignon said, as she opened the back door of the car, "help me upstairs with this girl."

On the way up in the elevator Mignon explained with chattering teeth.

"She ran in front of my car. I couldn't stop! Get Doctor Sims. I'll call my doctor too. Hurry!"

Mrs. Norton, the housekeeper, stood in the vestibule when Briggs, the butler, opened the door. Without questions, Mrs. Norton took charge of the situation.

They carried the unconscious girl into a guest bedroom and lay her down. There was blood coming from a small cut on her head. Mignon felt she was going to faint. She sat down to explain what had happened.

"You must notify the police," Mrs. Norton said practically, as if accidents were an every-day occurrence in her life. "She should have been taken straight to a hospital."

"I was too frightened to think," Mignon's chin trembled. "Poor thing!"

"She seems a ragamuffin," Briggs said. He did not look entirely pleased. "Goodness knows, Miss Laine, who she is!"

"It doesn't matter, Briggs," Mrs. Norton said icily. "She's only a young girl, and may be badly hurt. Don't be a snob at a time like this!"

Dr. Sims, who lived in the apartment, arrived first, followed closely by Dr. Meade. After a thorough examination they both arrived at the same verdict. The girl was uninjured, except for the small cut on her brow. But she was suffering from sunstroke and malnutrition.

"You—mean," Mignon was aghast, "she's hungry?"

"Very," Dr. Meade stood up. "She hasn't eaten in days. I should say. You'd better let me have her taken to a hospital."

Mignon looked down at the small pinched face and the curly black head and shook her head.

"No," she swallowed with an effort. "I want her to stay here. I'll take care of her."

Dr. Meade stroked his chin. Then he smiled.

"Not a bad idea perhaps. Give

Farouk Launches Huge Program to Modernize Egypt

CAIRO — (AP) — Youthful King Farouk is sponsoring a $70,000,000 plan to give each of his 16,000,000 subjects some of the benefits of the western civilization he likes so well.

When Farouk opened parliament he announced a 10-year program of social reforms for the fellahs, or peasants, who form 80 per cent of the population.

The Egyptian government realizes a higher standard of living will increase production and give the country more money to pay its bills.

Western civilization has made long strides in Egypt in the last half century. Tourists who come to Cairo are often amazed at the broad, clean streets of the European quarter, with its streams of automobiles and its nine-story apartment houses.

Many Egyptians wear western clothes, topped by the scarlet tarboosh. But 10 miles from the city the fellahs, whose ancestors built the pyramids, still live in low huts of brown Nile mud, with roughly thatched straw roofs, their mode of life little changed from that of their ancestors.

It was after midnight before the nurse could get Mignon to go to her own bed. She rolled and tossed for hours before she was able to fall asleep. Dr. Meade had promised to stop at the police station and turn in a report. She hoped there would be no trouble. He had assured her he could fix it up.

At seven o'clock, Mignon awakened. She jumped up and hurried into the patient's room. Miss Black was giving instructions to the day nurse, Miss Miller.

The girl in the bed stirred and slowly opened her eyes. Bewildered, she looked around the room. Mignon bent over her, smiling uncertainly.

"Good morning! Don't worry, you're among friends. I picked you up in Central park last night. You've been ill."

The patient raised slightly and Miss Miller told her gently, "Lie still, dear. You must take it easy for a while."

Mignon knelt beside her. "I'm Mignon Laine, and you're not to worry at all. Will you tell me who you are?"

Her head gradually clearing, the patient studied the older girl gravely for a few seconds.

"My name is Moleen O'Dare," she replied weakly.

"What a lovely name," Mignon touched her hand fleetingly. "Whom should we notify that you are here? Your family will probably be terribly worried."

Moleen closed her eyes. "No one. There's no one to notify. I have no home."

Mignon fought to control her emotions before she answered. "Then I'm glad I found you. We'll take good care of you, my dear."

Want to Know Why You're Constipated?

Would you give a million to shake off that dull, dopey, played-out feeling that often comes with common constipation? Then stop a minute and think.

What have you had to eat this week? Just meat, bread, eggs, potatoes? Probably the reason you're all out of kilter is you haven't got enough "bulk." And "bulk" doesn't mean how much you eat. It means a kind of food that isn't digested in your stomach, but leaves a soft, bulky mass in the intestines which helps a bowel movement.

What to do? Eat some Kellogg's All-Bran for breakfast every day. This crunchy toasted cereal is not only rich in "bulk"—it also contains both the intestinal tonic vitamin B₁ and iron.

Eat All-Bran every day and drink plenty of water. See if you don't get off your heels and on your feet. Kellogg's All-Bran is sold by every grocer.

RICHLAND FARM PICNIC PLANNED

First Outing of Its Kind in Years Set for Fairground During August.

A Richland county farmers' picnic, the first of its kind in the county in recent years, is scheduled to be held at the fairground in August, County Agent George B. Ganyard said today.

Members of all rural organizations and farm families in the county will be invited to attend the outing and join in baseball games, contests and athletic events.

The program will include a band concert and a talk by a speaker yet to be selected, Ganyard said.

Members of the executive committee in charge of arrangements for the picnic are H. H. Wolf, Franklin township; Arthur A. Mellick, Bloominggrove township; Mrs. Ruth Simpson, Franklin township; Avery Hale, Mifflin township; Walter Berry, Monroe township; Ronald Howard, Cass township; B. B. Pettit, Springfield township; Mary Gramly, Weller township; Harry Miller, Washington township; George Mentzer, Troy township; Carl Smith, Madison township, and County Agent Ganyard.

MERCURY MINE IN WEST RANKS THIRD IN WORLD

New Idria to Raise Output;
Quicksilver Held Essential
Product in War.

(By United Press)
KING CITY, Cal.—California has one of the largest quicksilver mines in the world—the New Idria, located deep in the Pacific Coast Range mountains 45 miles east of here.
More than a million 76-pound flasks totaling approximately 38,000,000 pounds of quicksilver have been produced at the big mine since it was opened in 1854. The mine is now sixth on the international list for total output.
The mine's record for total output of metal is topped by five other mines—the Almaden in Spain, the original Idria and the Monte Amiata in Italy, the long-abandoned Huan Cavelica in Peru and the New Almaden near San Jose, just north of here, which was closed several years ago.
Third in Production Now.
The great Almaden mine in Spain is shut down as a result of the civil war. The California mine's monthly output of 300 flasks (22,800 pounds) of the metal is now exceeded by only the two large Italian mines.
Quicksilver, or mercury as it is more commonly known, has many uses. War would be impossible without the glittering metal, for each high explosive shell or bomb is detonated by a small fulminate of mercury cap. It is equally as important in peacetime—for blast-

It is widely used in mining for gathering up minute particles of gold in quartz mills and on dredges. It is used in manufacture of scores of medicines, dyes, dyes and paints. Dentists even use it for making amalgam fillings.
High officials announced that two more ore furnaces will be placed in operation, raising the monthly capacity of the mine to at least 500 flasks (38,000 pounds). Two furnaces are now in operation at the mine.
The New Idria was discovered in 1852 by a Mexican prospector. Shortly afterward the Mexican was mysteriously slain and a number of persons tried to gain possession of the property. The wild scramble for the claim site inspired Bret Harte to write his "Story of a Mine."

NEW YORK—(AP)—Hans Adamson of the American Museum of Natural History says:
"It seems that most of the countries today have flowers as national emblems—but most of them are not saying it with flowers—but with guns.
In the international battle with flowers, the Scots would start with the advantage. There is the thistle. They selected the wayside thistle, says the Museum's publication, Natural History, because it helped them repel the Danes.
These Norsemen were one night creeping toward a Scot camp for a surprise attack. A barefooted Dane trod on a thistle and cried out. This warning defeated the attackers.

Anyhow it is a good story. So good that it is also told about Robert Bruce.
BY YUMPIN' YIMMINY!!
England and Persia would both have to fight with roses. They would be allies in flowers. India and Egypt both have the lotus for national flower.
Wales and Spain might get something practical out of their fighting flowers. Wales has the leek, a vegetable, Spain, the pomegranate.
The Welsh leek, according to tradition, was a war choice. St. David ordered his men to wear it to distinguish them from the Britons in battle.

Europe Hears of New Peace Moves In Spain, Orient

CHINA POINTS TO NECESSITY FOR MEDIATION

Minister Says Both Sides in Mood to End Strife But Fear Loss of Prestige.

(By Associated Press)

There were vague reports today of new efforts to end the Spanish and Oriental wars.

The conflict in China will be a year old July 7, and Japan, noting the slow progress of her offensive against the Chinese provisional capital at Hankow, today announced a new rearmament and industrial control program to help the army.

The Spanish insurgents, who on July 18 will have fought for two years against the Madrid-Barcelona government, made scant gains in their drive against the Mediterranean seaport of Valencia and were believed preparing to abandon it for the moment and try again to take Barcelona.

Need 3rd Party.
The Oriental talk of peace sprang from a German transoceanic news agency report quoting the Chinese foreign minister, Wang Chung-Hui, on the "usefulness of mediation by a third party," since the warring nations "desire to terminate hostilities but neither is willing to take the initiative for reasons of prestige."

The possibility of a Spanish truce centers about British efforts to get all foreign fighters out of Spain and thereby hinder the coming into effect of Britain's friendship pact with Italy, which has soldiers fighting with the insurgent army.

The new Japanese rearmament program restricts use of metals, chemicals, gasoline and other war materials; effects control of commodity prices to prevent wartime inflation; provides for a national thrift program and greater use of synthetic materials; restricts imports other than for war materials and for exportable manufactures, for which restrictions are relaxed.

Rains Interfere.
Heavy rains interfered with hostilities along the Yangtze, with Japanese warships still 200 miles from Hankow and the nearest army column 100 miles away.

The insurgents in Spain broke through government lines to the south bank of the Seco river. After capturing the village of Onda, but still were 35 miles north of Valencia.

New troop concentrations were being moved to the north, where insurgents were believed preparing the new drive toward Barcelona, which they regard as their "key to victory" and which they were unable to capture in a full force offensive last spring.

Lone Crestline Veteran Elected
By Ohio G. A. R.

Thomas Ridenour, 92, Crestline's lone survivor of the once vast Grand Army of the Republic, was elected subordinate vice commander of the Ohio G. A. R. at the 72nd annual state encampment at Columbus yesterday.

Frederick Pfeister, 92-year-old veteran of Cincinnati was chosen state commander and J. T. Romig, 94, of New Philadelphia, was named senior vice commander.

Ridenour came to Crestline from Dupont, O., in 1933. He has attended meetings of the G. A. R. post in the last few years in the absence of a post in Crestline.

Mr. and Mrs. Ridenour will return home tomorrow. They will leave Monday for Gettysburg, Pa., where Ridenour will attend the national encampment on the 75th anniversary of the famous battle of Gettysburg.

HELD IN JAIL
25-Year-Old Man Cited by Mother of Mansfield Girl, 13.

Arrested at his home on Lexington road last night, Clarence Norris, 25, R. D. 1, Mansfield, was held in the county jail today for county juvenile authorities on a charge of contributing to the delinquency of a minor.

Norris was arrested on a warrant out of juvenile court which was signed by the mother of a 13-year-old Mansfield girl. He is accused of making improper advances to the girl.

DIES IN BLAST
Workman Killed While Trying to Make Aerial Bomb.

VAN WERT—A blast at the Bowen Works company plant late yesterday fatally injured Delbert Roesser, 22, broke out windows for a half mile and could be felt over much of the town.

It was followed by a fire which company officials estimated caused $5,000 damage. The explosion followed the accidental discharge of an aerial bomb being made by Roesser.

Council to Get Request for Building Code

Up and Down THE STREET

A plan to help high school boys find work during the summer months was inaugurated today by the Y. M. C. A. with the opening of an "odd job employment bureau." Ralph B. Chapman, general secretary of the "Y," said the names of several boys who want either full or part time work during their vacation period are on file at the "Y."

Robert Hayes, 654, Arlington avenue, was one of the few Mansfielders fortunate enough to own a ticket for last night's Louis-Schmeling fight, but he wasn't a bit disappointed because he did not use it. A few days ago Hayes got the idea that the fight wouldn't last long, so he cancelled reservations for the trip. The fight lasted just two minutes and four seconds. Hayes, by the way, also picked Louis to win.

When the mercury gets up to 90 degrees in the shade, it is warm—but that isn't nearly as warm as it is in one of the police cruisers, take it from Patrolman Howard Schuck, who pilots a patrol car. Schuck is almost positive his cruiser was the hottest place in Mansfield the other day when a thermometer registered 102 in the car.

Youngsters in the Hedges school district will get their first opportunity Monday to ride in those tiny blue automobiles when "Safety Town" is moved to the Hedges playlot for a week. Patrolman Fred Boals, in charge of the project which is operated by the city recreation department to teach pre-school children to respect traffic laws, said the miniature traffic light was being overhauled and would be ready for the opening of the game of "motorist" and "pedestrian" at 9 a. m. Monday.

Deputy Sheriff Frank E. Robinson and P. S. Carroll, clerk of the board of county commissioners, experienced one of those co-incidental meetings yesterday that happen once in a lifetime. Purchasing their tickets for the Cleveland-New York ball games, at different times and making the trip in separate parties, Robinson and Carroll clambered through a crowd of 70,000 fans to find themselves sitting together in the huge stadium.

WINS CONTEST

Edna Keller Crowned 'Miss Mansfield' at Park.

Miss Edna Keller, 102 North Adams street, was crowned Miss Mansfield last night at Seacalum park, and will represent the city in a contest to select "Miss Ohio," June 29 in the Cleveland Municipal stadium in conjunction with the International Grotto convention.

Miss Keller will also be given a trophy and screen test that will be reviewed by major motion picture talent scouts. Miss Keller is employed as an office clerk at the Telling-Belle Vernon company here.

Selected as alternates to Miss Keller were Thelma Wiley, Lincoln Heights and Vivian Walter, 310 Purdy street. Both alternates will also appear in the Cleveland contest with all expenses paid.

Tonight at the park a Miss Bucyrus and Miss Galion will be selected to represent those two cities in the Cleveland contest. Winners from the various towns will also compete tonight for the title of Miss Seacalum.

The Miss Mansfield contest at Seacalum park was sponsored by Bakus Grotto. Judges for the contest were Arthur A. Craven, Marion A. H. Marks, monarch of Kad-gro Grotto, Marion, and Donald Love of Bucyrus.

SET FOR PICNIC

Mystic Club Outing to be Held at Oak Park Tomorrow.

Oak park, five miles east of Mansfield on the Wooster road, will be the scene tomorrow of the annual Mystic club picnic and outing for members of the club and Mansfield Masons.

The picnic will be an all-day affair with dinner scheduled to be served at noon. Horseshoe and kitenball will be played during the day.

In the event of rain the affair will be held at the Masonic temple, with dinner between 5 and 7 p. m.

KILLS LAWYERS IN COURTROOM

Farmer Confesses Shooting Pair, Says 'They Can't Hurt Anyone Else.'

(By Associated Press)
LOS ANGELES—Pistol shots that shattered the solemnity of a Los Angeles courtroom left two attorneys dead today and their confessed slayer, a former South Dakota farmer, in jail without bail.

"I did it," Arthur Emil Hansen, 38, formerly of Wakonda, S. D., was quoted as saying by Sheriff's Capt. William Penphrasen. "I regret nothing I did. I had nothing to lose. I'm glad they're dead; they can't hurt anyone else."

Slain as they were seated side by side in the hall of records courtroom were R. D. McLaughlin and J. Irving Hancock, the latter a cousin of G. Allan Hancock, multi-millionaire Los Angeles oil man, scientist and philanthropist. McLaughlin was a native of Chillicothe, O.

A legal fight between Hansen and Hancock's father, John Hancock, led to the killings, it was indicated.

Hansen won judgment of $7,000 several months ago against J. W. and Katherine Coykendall. Later, the elder Hancock won a judgment against Hansen obtained on the judgment Hansen obtained. The proceedings became more entangled as several other parties levied on Hansen's judgment.

The shooting took place a few minutes before Commissioner Kurtz Kauffman was to give his findings in the litigation.

SLOT FUGITIVE DIES

COLUMBUS—(AP)—Jess Johnson, 26, of Columbus, arrested with four youths in connection with the attempted hi-jacking of slot machines in Madison Mills, Fayette county, died in a hospital after a day of a bullet wound inflicted by State Patrolman J. C. Lerch.

PROPOSAL TO BE PRESENTED AT AUGUST SESSION

Contractors, Supply Dealers Agree on Committee to Draft Regulations.

City council at its August meeting will be asked to consider the adoption of a building code for Mansfield with regulations to cover building construction in the city along with the hiring of a building inspector.

The request will be made by Mansfield contractors and building supply dealers who met at the Chamber of Commerce last night and outlined a plan of procedure to "put the code through."

The group agreed to the appointment of a general committee made up of two members from each of the city's building trades which will study further the proposed code in order to have it in shape for presentation to council in the next six weeks. The committee appointments will be made by the Chamber of Commerce which has been sponsoring the move for the code.

Reviews Former Code Plan.
Decision to take the request for immediate action before council came after Herbert Slough, chairman of the chamber's committee on fire prevention had reviewed a voluminous building code which had been presented to city council nearly two years ago.

He pointed out that the code in the form of an ordinance had been turned over to a special committee headed by Councilman Russell D. Porch but that "nothing had ever become of it."

Slough said that Mansfield was paying a penalty of $50,000 annually in excess fire insurance rates for not having a building code. He added that the proposed code turned over to council two years ago had the endorsement of the building trades council and the Mansfield Trades Council.

"The code called for the appointment of a building inspector that would put the teeth in the law, but right now what we must do is first get the code into operation," Slough said.

Mayor Claude M. Hunter who attended the session told the group that he was "with them 100 per cent" on any plan to provide a building code for Mansfield.

TRIO 'FESS UP
Youths Admit Theft, Placed in Custody of Parents.

Three youths, the oldest of them 14, today were back in the custody of their parents following a run-in with officers of the law last night.

Police, called to 46 1/2 West Fifth street last night, said they found two of the youths, both 12, stealing cherries. They named a third whose age was 14, and all three were taken to police headquarters where they admitted they had been staging nightly raids which included the theft of milk bottles. They also admitted, police said, that they had broken open a vending machine at the Y. M. C. A. some time ago.

The officers turned them over to their parents who promised to keep them in the house after dark.

HELD TO JURY ON CHECK CHARGE

Mansfielder Denies Accusation; Cited by Taxi Company Official.

Pleading innocent to a charge of issuing a check with insufficient funds when arraigned before Judge G. E. Kahlfleisch in municipal court today, Homer Reid, 43, 29 North Foster street, was bound to the grand jury under $1,000 bond.

Reid was arrested by Deputy Sheriff Glenn P. Freeman at Lexington yesterday on a warrant signed by George Reichert, manager of the Service Taxi company, 64 North Diamond street. In his affidavit, Reichert charged that the firm accepted a check for $9 from Reid on payment of a bill. He said the check was returned from the Mansfield Savings Trust National bank, marked "no account."

GEN. JOHNSON:

Co-operation Between 3 Groups Would Rout Depression Immediately

—By HUGH S. JOHNSON

BETHANY BEACH, Del.—I know of nobody well enough informed to have an opinion who does not believe that, with a fair degree of cooperation between government, labor and management, this depression could be turned the other way immediately. The danger and damage of the slump are so great that it seems incredible that there is not conference, compromise and agreement.

My old associate, Donald Richberg, discussed this theme with force at Detroit recently. He suggested that the barrier is the 10 per cent of intellectual bullies, thugs and congenital trouble makers in each group. That is the symptom but not the disease. The real trouble is that not one of these groups wholly trusts the others or believes in protestations that a real conviction has come that the indicated changes in old relationships must ungrudgingly be made without a change in our form of government.

Business does not wholly believe that government wants to make reasonable profits and keep a reasonable part of them. It fears that this administration in its heart harbors an intent eventually to enforce, by confiscatory taxation and unreasonable regulation, some of what Mr. Richberg's "rioters" on the government side call "production for use and not for profit"—which is communism.

Business also fears that labor has put no limit to its intended demands. It does not believe the assertions that labor realizes that business must make profits if labor is to be employed and prosper. The words and action of some of Mr. Richberg's "bullies" in labor are a basis of that belief. In that state of mind, business is unwilling to confide too far.

Government cherishes more than a lurking doubt that business has loyally accepted the principles of the reform laws—collective bargaining, the unhampered choice of labor of its own representatives, the social security, anti-monopoly and relief policies. The acts and attitude of several prominent die-hard industrialists give substance to that doubt and in this lack of confidence the administration seems unwilling to relief its anti-business pressure on any front.

Labor organizations, like government, find many points of either stubborn or adroit resistance to its efforts to organize and represent workers in many industries. It hears strong and forthright words of defiance of New Deal labor objectives as well as methods by some of the most prominent businessmen and decides that only militancy can prevail.

You can't get cooperation in that kind of atmosphere. Every shield is up—every sword raised. It drives each group separately to the very extremes of hostility instead of to the middle ground of compromise for the common good.

For all this three groups are to blame, but one of them is clearly the most to blame. Of the three only one could assert leadership and have that leadership accepted to the point of conference and agreement—at least to disagree. That group is government.

If such a conference were called and any one of the three groups proved unreasonable and uncompromising, the public would at least know where to place the blame. Considering that such blame would be for the disintegration of prosperity and continued threat to the nation itself, any group would be brave indeed which would dare the indignation of the people at such a stand.

The situation needs the leadership which only this administration can give it—and that is all it needs. Since 1933, the administration has not taken one step to assert that leadership. The whole purpose seems to be peace and partnership "but to demonstrate the frantic boast 'they have met their master.' It even suggests that this rather than recovery is what is desired. So long as this remains true, blame for this unhappy season is sole and single upon this administration.

Hollywood Speaks---

By ROBBIN COONS

HOLLYWOOD—About the most delectable morsel of actress to expose herself to a Hollywood camera in many a month is Mlle. Danielle Darrieux, heretofore famed for her delicate dramatic performance in the French film "Mayerling" and for her shapely figure as glorified by Hollywood still cameras.

She makes an impressive American debut in "The Rage of Paris," a girls' light comedy directed with a "touch" by Henry Koster and enacted with enthusiasm by the star, Douglas Fairbanks, Jr., Mischka Auer, Louis Hayward and Helen Broderick. Miss Darrieux portrays a French girl stranded in New York, out to get herself a rich husband on the advice of Miss Broderick after efforts to land a job have failed. Auer as a headwaiter is prime investor in the scheme, Hayward the intended victim, young Fairbanks the friend who tries to save Hayward, with consequences for himself no less delightful in their screen narration for their inevitability.

The new star—for she is that—exhibits gamish charm, seductive innocence, and spicy temper in this comedy assignment along with fresh and youthful beauty.

"Having Wonderful Time" is a comedy about a Bronx girl who finds romance at Kamp Kare-Free with the same young Fairbanks who serves Miss Darrieux romantically in "The Range of Paris." He plays a waiter at the boisterous vacation resort where hundreds of job-sick youngsters, including Ginger Rogers, go for two frenzied weeks of "rest."

Somewhere in the cinema shuffle part of Playwright Arthur Kober's richly humorous pathos seems to have been lost, but the picture retains many high spots of comedy and is generally enjoyable. Alfred Santell is credited with direction, but re-takes by George Stevens provide the funniest sequence—the backgammon game by Ginger and Lee Bowman, Kamp Kare-Free's Lothario. Lucille Ball, Bowman, Eve Arden, Donald Meek, Grady Sutton and Richard Skelton (he's the "social director" who thinks he's a wow) are among the excellent support.

"Speed to Burn" marks former movie newsmen Jerry Hoffman's bow as a producer. First in a series of "sports adventures," it deals with horse-racing. Essentially familiar ingredients are brightened with novel twists and a worthy cast does well under Otto Brower's direction. Henry Armetta and Inez Palange as a comedy team almost steal the show, but Marvin Stephens, former newsmen, is convincingly sincere and Michael Whalen and Lynn Bari (who looks amazingly like Colbert) are excellent. The whole is more than acceptable.

CATHOLIC EDUCATOR ADDRESSES COUNCIL

Westbrook Country Club Scene of Luncheon at Which Miss Theodora Blake, Bedford, Presented Social Lecture.

MORE than 150 women attended the luncheon meeting of the Mansfield deanery of the National Council of Catholic Women which was held at the Westbrook Country club yesterday afternoon and at which Miss Theodora Blake, Catholic educator and lecturer, Bedford, was the principal speaker.

Discussing the topic, "Drift of Pinions," Miss Blake contrasted conditions today with those of 50 and 100 years ago in pointing out the vast improvements that have come over the social and economic order.

—Advice—
Sister Seeks Advice For Older Brother

By VIRGINIA LEE

An interesting problem is given us in the following letter:
"DEAR VIRGINIA LEE: I don't feel it's any of my business, but I find I'm roused up in it too.
"My brother is 30 and I'm 24. He has been going with a girl for nine years, and since the past nine months has been seeing another girl. The first girl knows about it and she's been wonderful about the whole thing. I've met the other girl and she's very nice but a few years younger, and brother claims he's going to keep the two of them and not give either one up.
"Now this first girl has practically wasted all her time on him and she loves him very much, and he also loves her, but likes the other too. You see the first one is quite settled and doesn't like parties, dancing, etc., whereas the other one can mix very well with anyone, and he likes her for all these points.
"Right now my brother is away, but when he returns his first girl intends to drop out and return her ring. Do you think she should do this, and what can I do to help? We have lost our parents and it's just the two of us now, and I couldn't stand by and see the first one treated so. She's been very good to him. Miss Lee, will you please try and help me? I have great faith in you."

"BEATRICE."
I'm afraid you can do little in the matter, dear. It is up to that big brother of yours, and he will have to work it out. There are times when we must just let our loved ones face and solve their own problems, and keep our hands off, hard as it is.

This is not an unusual situation. It often happens that when young people go together for years without marrying, one or the other tires of the affair—at least the two are apt to grow apart. They do not have the mutual interests that would have held them together if they had been married. For that reason I think it is usually a mistake for a girl to let a man monopolize her time for so long without some date, if possible, being set for their marriage.

Possibly the first girl is slightly at fault because she hasn't made herself an all-around companion for your brother. She has "settled down," you say, and doesn't satisfy his needs on the lighter side of life—the fun. Maybe she isn't made so she enjoys parties and such, but it is too bad when a young woman her age grows too serious. Couldn't she cultivate that side of herself and so make herself more congenial?

Conversation Aids You In Social Gatherings.

Learn Art of Good Conversation.

Turn to the social columns of the newspaper. Listed "Among those present," you'll always read the name of Sally Jones.

Sally's neither brilliant nor beautiful. But her gay, easy conversation wins her friends galore. To break the ice with new acquaintances, use little tricks like these:

Take a cue from your surroundings. Say to your new dinner partner, "I've just been admiring the hostess' beautiful silverware. Do you think it can be a family heirloom?"

Know what's in the news. If sports are discussed be ready to break in with, "I see the Tigers won again today. I hope you're as thrilled as I am."

Put a shy person at ease by taking him into your confidence. "The funniest thing happened to me today..." Or ask his advice on a subject of mutual interest. "You're a gardener. Perhaps you can tell me what I should do for my rose bushes..."

Follow the hints on good talk in our 32-page booklet. Introductions, repartee, leave-takings.

Exercises For Flabby Upper Arms

—Beauty—
By JULIET SHELBY
(Central Press Writer on Beauty)

THERE HAVE BEEN worlds of requests in the last few days for treatments to reduce fatty upper arms. Don't worry, the plump upper arm is really not the "bête noir" that some of you think. It will give in to a slenderizing treatment as quickly as any other part of the body if you will concentrate on trying to work off that flabby excess weight. So here are our suggestions:

Special exercises done in conjunction with one of the home-made reducing lotions, which we mentioned in a previous column, will really do the trick. But if you want your arms to look their best in your sleeveless summer numbers, you had better start your remodeling soon.

These exercises will reduce the arms, firm the muscles that support the breasts, and are also excellent for the shoulders. Stand erect and raise your elbows to shoulder level. Then fling your arms outward and backward ten times.

Second is the punching bag exercise. If you don't own a punching bag, suspend a pillow in a doorway and punch it as hard as you can. Do this for about ten minutes.

Third, stand erect and from your shoulders shoot your arms forward, upward and sideways. Do this ten times.

Fourth Exercise.

Fourth, stand erect and extend your arms out at the sides, full length, at shoulder level. Start making circles in the air with your extended arms and hands. Begin with small circles and increase to as large dimensions as you can describe without pulling your body out of its original position. Do this five times, starting your circles forward and then five times starting them backward.

Fifth, stretch your arms full length at your sides. Have them even with your shoulders. Start describing fair sized circles, then clap your hands alternately in front and in back, trying not to bend the elbows.

Sixth, bend your elbows so that the tips of your fingers touch your shoulders. Move your elbows forward until they touch in front, then bend them as far behind you as you can without strain. Repeat this ten times.

Seventh, lie face down across a chair or stool. Relax your body, with your hands and feet touching the floor lightly. Now straighten your body stretching your arms and legs upward; then relax to the first position. Repeat these movements from three to five times, gradually increasing the number

Marriage Meddlers

Continuation of "Married Comrades"
By ADELE GARRISON

At Bill's panic-stricken cry, I leaned forward and took his twisting hands in mine.
"Look at me!" I said with a touch of sternness which I knew his racked nerves needed, "and answer me this question: Have I ever told you a falsehood?"
"Never," he returned, bewildered at the question, but determined to answer it honestly.

"Then I expect you to believe me when I tell you that neither your uncle nor I am planning to shut Hank up anywhere. Instead, we are planning to have him go back to school with you just as he always has done."

The sigh of relief he gave came from the soles of his shoes.
"I might have known," he said. "You never let anybody down. But didn't you say something was going to be done about Hank?"

Tells Him of Plan.

"Yes, I did," I returned. "Your uncle and I, acting on the advice of Aunt Katherine, think that a specialist in neurotic complexes ought to see Hank before he goes back to school, and see what can be done for him."

His face was suddenly troubled.
"That's a splendid idea," he said, "but I'm afraid Hank will be so scared he'll go all to pieces. He'll think the way I did just now, that of times as you become used to the exertion.

Eighth, stand erect with your stomach flat and your fingers interlocked behind. Rotate the shoulders and stretch your hands down as far as you can bring them.

Of course you may feel that we have given you quite a number of exercises, but it isn't necessary to do them all. Select only two and concentrate on them for a day or two, adding another two as your muscles become used to the exercises. Do some of them every day with enough energy to feel exhilarated and get results.

No need to go through the day with a "hangover" headache that racks your nerves and interferes with business. Just take liquid Capudine and note how quickly head clears, pep returns and nerves are calmed and steadied. Contains no narcotics and doesn't upset stomach. Try it for morning after. By dose at drug fountain and in 3c and 6c bottles.

Club Women Ask Questions Of Mrs. Post

—Etiquet—
By EMILY POST

Dear Mrs. Post: I am invited to a tea given at the club house of a large civic club for its new members, of which I am one. I am unable to go and would like to know if I am to send a visiting card as I would in formal situations were the party being given by a private hostess. Also, will you tell me whether all invitations to club affairs are answered as private invitations are, and if so to me enthusiastically, and was on his way to the door when I stopped him reluctantly, for I disliked saying what I must to him.

"One more thing, Bill," I said. "Unless I give you the word, I would rather you told no one, not even your uncle, that we had this conversation about Hank, or that I told you you were going with him. You needn't act surprised when you are told you are going. Just say very little, and nobody will guess. There is a good reason why I am asking this," I concluded lamely.

"You don't need to give me any reason for anything you do, Aunt Madge," he said, and then he gave me an impetuous bear hug and kissed me, a rare caress, indeed, for Bill.

"You're the best scout in the world," he said huskily as he went out, and my heart was warm with tenderness as I watched him go. Then, a minute later, I went downstairs to the library where I was sure the family would be assembled.

whom they should be addressed.
Answer: In recognition of this first invitation, I suggest writing an informal personal note to the secretary of the club telling her you are sorry that you are not going to be able to go to the tea. Hereafter you need not answer such invitations unless asked to. The ordinary notices of meetings to be held or luncheons and entertainments given will require answers only when a seat or a table is to be reserved for you. Your failure to answer would be taken as an indication that you do not expect to be present.

Dear Mrs. Post: I have been ill and during my illness I received flowers from a club to which I belong. My husband sent them a brief thank-you in writing and said that I would thank them when I was able. I haven't written any note as yet and the doctor now tells me that if I want to I can go to the regular meeting of this club a few days off. I'd so much rather thank these women when I see them but wondered if I should have written a note before going to the meeting.

Answer: Your husband's note of thanks was all that was necessary and I think it would be very much nicer to thank the different members as you see them, verbally. After all, this is much more personal to each one than writing a formal note to the secretary of the club.

HELP 15 MILES OF KIDNEY TUBES

To Flush out Acids and Other Poisonous Waste

Doctors say your kidneys contain 15 Miles of tiny tubes or filters which help to purify the blood and keep you healthy. Most people pass about 2 pints a day or about 3 pounds of waste. Frequent or scanty passages with smarting and burning above there may be something wrong with your kidneys or bladder. An excess of acids or poisons in your blood, when due to functional kidney disorders, may be the beginning of nagging backache, rheumatic pains, leg pains, loss of pep and energy, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness. Don't wait! Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, used successfully by millions for over 40 years. They give a happy relief and will help the 15 Miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from your blood. Get Doan's Pills.
